Channing church was attended by large congregations at both services on Sunday. The pulpit platform was beautifully decorated with lilies and plants in flower. A fine program of music was given at the vesper service in the evening.

The two largest Sunday congregations ever at Eliot church, gathered on Easter Sunday morning and evening. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers, and the music was unusually good. The choral service in the evening was the best yet rendered by the large choir of the church.

The Waban Racquet club has completed its arrangements for the coming season. They have secured a better located field where six courts will be laid out, two of dirt and the remainder of grass. It is the intention of the club to have the finest courts in the city.

There promises to be a good deal of building going on this summer, especially on the Silsby land and along Hunnewell avenue, where a number of handsome houses will be erected. In other parts of Ward One and Seven there will be less building than usual.

The ladies of the Channing Society will hold their sewing circle at the church parlor next Thursday afternoon, April 9th.
As it will be the last meeting for the season,
a special effort is being made to make it an interesting one, and a large attendance is expected. Gentlemen are invited to tea.

A farce entitled "A horrible night" was given by Messrs. J. E. Warner and A.
Emery at the residence of Aaron F.
Emery, Esq. on April 2. The party was well sustained for an amateur performance and it is hoped that this is but the beginning of a series to be given by these gentlemen.

elected Monday evening are: Wardens,

A black and tan dog was killed near the depot by Officer Harrington, Tuesday morning. It was running about snapping at every one, and grabbed Baggage-master Morgan by the hand, but fortunately he had a thick leather glove on, so that he was not bitten. It attempted to bite several others, but was killed before any one was injured.

Donations for the Penroy Home during the month of March were as follows:
Newton Centre, clothing, pictures, rolls, bread, Baptist church, cake, beans, rolls;
West Newton, Baptist sewing circle, 6 aprons; Newtonville, a friend, clothing; Boston, a friend, clothing; Newton, a friend, clothing. Partly worn carpets or rugs can be made good use of in the Home and will be highly acceptable.

Mrs. J. Q. A. Harrington died very suddenly on Saturday morning last of neuralgia of the heart, aged 62 years. She leaves a husband and four children, Messrs.
I. B. and Luther Q. Harrington, Mrs. Fred
Morgan, and Miss Abbie M. Harrington.
The funeral services were held on Monday, Rev. Mr. Hornbrooke officiating. The interment was at Weston, the native place of the deceased.

A pink tea was given in the Channing church parlors, Wednesday evening, with a harp and song recital and readings as the special feature. Miss Harriet Shaw gave a number of selections upon the harp, and accompanied Rev. Mr. Hornbrooke, who read the first part of Browning's "Saul." Miss Caroline Clarke also sang several fine selections, and the entertainment was a very interesting one and liberally patronized.

A meeting of the Newton Y. M. C. A. was held Wednesday evening in the parish house of Grace church, and Mr. Arthur F.
Barrett of Yonkers, N. Y., accepted to take a position as general secretary of the Newton Y. M. C. A. Mr. Barrett concludes his services as general secretary of the Yonkers association May 1, and will then assume his duties in this place. Negotiations for rooms for the future use of the Y. M. C. A. continue, and a favorable arrangement will without doubt be made this week.

Company C, 4th regiment, M. V. M., assisted by Maj. Benyon of the 5th reg-men and three officers, and made a very creditable showing in the manual and in company and platoon movements. The inspecting officers complimented the work of the men who took the examination for places on the non-commissioned staff. Capt.

George C. Applin had charge of the general drill.

The Easter services at Grace church were so largely attended that many were unable to find seats. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers, the windows being filled with tulips and primroses, and calla lilies in pots placed along the centre aisle. The Channing presented a beautiful sight with its masses of Easter lilies and other flowers. The music was unusually good and the boy choir continues to make marked improvement. The evening service saw the church again filled. Rev. Dr.
Shinn preached very interesting Easter sermons at both services.

The Boston Herald gives the following:
"It was reported a few days ago that Mr.
D. W. Farquhar had interested himself in the Newton postmaster election, and that he had started a petition in favor of Rev. Mr.
Gould, that he favored that gentleman as opposed to Mr. Morgan, the present incumbent, and that he (Mr. Farquhar) was at odds with ex-Congressman Candler and voted against that gentleman at the last election.
All of these statements Mr. Farquhar declares to be false. He did not even sign a paper supporting Mr. Gould, much less did he have any interest in the election. He was merely a bystander, and for his relations with Mr. Candler, Mr. Farquhar says that he has had no difficulty with him."

The death of Mrs. Catherine Bailey removes the oldest resident of Newton, who had lived here since 1848. She was the widow of Deacon Calvin Bailey, one of the original members of Channing church, and was the oldest living member of that church. Although she had reached the great age of 93 years, it was only within a few months that her memory and health had begun to fail, and during her long life
she had hardly known any serious illness.
She was remarkable for her kindly nature,
and it was esteemed a privilege to be numbered among her friends. She leaves seven children and twenty-four grandchildren and four great grandchildren, the children being: Mrs. Langdon Coffin, Mrs. J. C.
Potter and Miss Bailey, and four sons, Rev.
Mr. Hornbrooke officiated at the funeral services, the grandsons acting as pall bearers, and the interment was in the Newton Cemetery.

The Union Good Friday service at Eliot church was largely attended, every seat being filled. The singing was led by the boy choir of Grace church and they also gave several special numbers, with Soloists, Masters Wilson and Randall. Rev. Dr.
McKewen opened the services with prayer and reading the Bible account of the crucifixion. Rev. Dr. Calkins made the introductory address, giving a general account of the events commemorated by the service;
Rev. Mr. Merrill spoke of the inscription over the cross, "This is Jesus, the King of the Jews." Rev. Mr. Hornbrooke of the meaning of the words of Jesus, expressing his feeling of being forsaken, and Rev. Dr.
Shinn made the closing address on the Resurrection. It was the most interesting and largely attended of the only Good Friday services which have been held.

Easter Sunday was a red letter day in the history of the Newton Street Railway, and hundreds of people took advantage of
the opportunity offered by this company to attend the services of the various Newton churches. Anticipating a large patronage, the management made a determined effort to meet it, and how well it was done can best be attested by the patrons themselves.
Every closed car the company, except as pressed into service, and even an open car was run during the afternoon, which was well filled on every trip. Three thousand and sixty-seven represents the total number carried, and without a mishap or delay.
The company intend to furnish every possible accommodation to its patrons in the upper wards, who desire to attend the Sunday services at Newton, and it is hardly necessary to add that such service will be appreciated, and will add to the popularity of the line with the traveling public.

The Misses Parker celebrated the 25th anniversary of their engaging in business in Newton on Wednesday, at the Newton bazaar. The store windows were filled with foliage and flowering plants from Mr. Johnson's conservatories. The store was decorated with flowers, and the Misses Parker received their guests, who numbered several hundred ladies from Newton, Boston, Roxbury and Cambridge, and the other Newton villages. A table was set in the rear of the store and refreshments were served to the guests. The Misses Parker have made a very honorable and successful business record, and their store is quite a favorite resort for Newton ladies, who wish the last magazine, or fashion paper, the latest novel, or anything in the toy, or stationery line, or games, holiday cards and other like goods, patterns, etc. They have lately added needles, thread and other small wares to their stock. They have many friends in the city who were glad of an opportunity to extend their congratulations and wish them continued prosperity.

The order of service at the church of Our Lady, Easter Sunday was as follows:
Masses at 6.30 and 8.30 and at 10.30 high mass, was performed by Rev. Father Giffether. The music was in charge of Mr. D. A. Hearty, and Haydn's First Mass was sung for the first time in this city the choir of 50 voices making it grand in its beauty.

Newton Boat Club.

The sale of tickets for the Newton Boat Club Minstrels, April 15 and 16, was opened at the boat house Saturday evening last, and at its close nearly 500 tickets were sold for the two evenings. The price of $1.50 for choice of reserved seats was not considered too high when the quality of the entertainment was taken into consideration.
Every detail connected with the performance is to be as closely followed as on the professional stage. Although the cast is taken from the club members and personal friends of the members, the music will be much superior to that of professional shows of this character while the acting in the original sketch for second part will compare favorably with the regular theater and aside from the personal interest Newton people have in the club, we know they will pay as much to see a really first-class performance in Newton as in Boston and such we assure our readers the Newton Boat Club Minstrels will be.

The Newton Camera Club.

Several months ago a club was formed in Newton called "The Camera Club." Since that time its membership has steadily increased and now the members are talking of giving during the summer or fall an exhibition of their work. The club, as its name implies, is intended to embrace all the Newtons, and is open to all interested in amateur photography. While we know that much good individual work is being done by young photographers of Newton, we also know that a club would bind these more firmly together, that they would be benefited by mutual suggestions, and would carry out the saying, "In union there is strength." As soon as the membership of the club permits it is intended to fit up, in the most convenient and central place in the city, a room to be used by the members as a laboratory and dark room. Later in the season several field days will be held in the country and at the beach. All applications for admission should be addressed to "The Newton Camera Club, Box 128, Newton, Mass. E.

The Newton Postmastership.

The Boston Post of this morning has the following special from Washington:

"The Newton postoffice still seems to hang fire.
Postmaster-General Wauwamaker dislikes extremely to recommend the reappointment of a Democrat, but he has not yet found a suitable Republican to fill the office. Mr. Candler has recommended the reappointment of Postmaster Morgan and Senator Hoar favors it, but after defating them both in the Boston case the Postmaster-General is strongly tempted to measure words with them again over the Newton office."

It is ascertained that by instructions from Washington a number of prominent Republicans have been urged to say they would be a candidate for the office, but with one accord they have refused, saying that they would not be a party with Mr. Wauwamaker to a violation of civil service reform principles and anti-election pledges. The spectacle of peddling the office about is not a very creditable one.

NEWTON COTTAGE HOSPITAL.

DIFFICULTIES BETWEEN EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE AND MEDICAL MEN ADJUSTED.

A meeting of the Newton Cottage Hospital corporation was held Monday afternoon in the chapel of Eliot church for the purpose of taking action on changes recommended in the bylaws by the board of trustees. Mr. J. R. Leeson, the president, presided.

The principal change in the bylaws was necessitated by the recent action of the executive committee in accepting the resignations of the members of the medical board.

The trustees virtually recommended, in place of the medical board, the organization of an executive committee on new lines, the medical profession to be represented by one physician of each school. The proposed amendment providing for this change brought out a lively debate, in which the representative physicians of Newton took an active part.

Dr. J. R. Utley opposed the passage of the amendment, and a petition was then presented by Dr. Otis E. Hunt in behalf of 30 physicians of the city, representing that in the management of hospital affairs it is desirable that the physicians and surgeons giving their time, skill and strength freely should be regarded as worthy the same degree of consideration as that extended to those who devote their entire time to the material needs of the hospital. With this consideration in mind and in view of the different functions pertaining to the two branches of professional and non-professional service it is desirable that the details of hospital management should be managed by distinct bodies, one of which is composed of physicians alone and has under its jurisdiction everything relating to the medical and surgical service of the hospital. The petitioners protested against any change in the bylaws which shall abridge the self governing power of the physicians and surgeons of the hospital, thereby abrogating what they hold to be the privilege by right of their profession.

In regard to the proposition offered in the proposed amendment Dr. Hunt said that the physicians would have a vote of two and the laity a vote of five in an executive committee. He said that the medical men of the committee could make their nominations for the hospital staff and five men could veto those nominations whenever they chose. It would be perfectly folly for the medical men to agree to such a plan as it would place the control of the medical department in the hands of the laity and it would entirely overthrow the spirit of the petition of his profession, which practically asked that a medical board be given entire charge of the medical service of the hospital. If the proposed amendment were passed, the medical men on the committee would possess no real power, and hardly a physician in the city would accept a place on the executive committee under such circumstances. The responsibility would be too much. If the executive committee comprises seven persons, it should include five medical men. The medical men could not satisfactorily run the medical service of the hospital.

Rev. Dr. Worcester said that the proposed amendment would change the whole constitution of the hospital and would be likely to destroy the usefulness of the speaker. I wish, said Dr. Worcester, that all small issues could be out of sight and that we could put ourselves again in the position we occupied when the hospital was founded. We saw the need then of securing the service and co-operation of the medical men and took great pains to bring about harmony between the two schools of medicine. The work of the hospital, continued Dr. Worcester, made the physicians a working unit. In securing the interest and co-operation of the physicians, we secured the interest and co-operation of the community. We must keep at interest in the future, continue our successes of the past. In order to secure co-operation, it is always necessary to make concessions. For this reason, the control of the medical service of the hospital should be placed in the hands of the physicians. Dr. Hunt is right when he says that the physician would accept a place on the executive committee made up under the proposed amendment. It would be a humiliating position to be placed in such a small minority and the measures recommended by two physicians of the committee could be voted down whenever it was convenient. If physicians will not accept places on the committee the plan proposed is rendered useless at the start. The management of the medical service would not be in the control of medical men and future trouble would be engendered.

In my opinion, said Dr. Worcester, the moment the proposed amendment is adopted the hospital becomes a wreck, and I therefore offer the following at a substitute amendment:

That a medical board be organized, to consist of four members of each school, to be nominated by the hospital staff and to be appointed by the executive committee, their terms of office to be arranged for four, three, two and one year, in order that a new member can be elected every year.

Dr. Hunt said that the physicians would be satisfied with the plan proposed by Rev. Dr. Worcester.

Mr. E. W. Converse said that he did not share in Rev. Dr. Worcester's opinion that the hospital would suffer so seriously if the amendment passed. It seems to me, he added, that the change would give the medical men on the executive committee positions of more influence than under the old system of a medical board. There seems to be no good reason for the feeling that the other members of the committee would ask to interfere with the details of medical service at the hospital. It would be advisable to dispense with the medical board and the physicians have been placed instead on the executive committee. The proposition of the trustees seems to me to be fair, and if the amendment is rejected much disappointment will be caused which would tend to decrease the interest taken in the hospital by those individuals, who have freely given towards its maintenance.

After much more discussion the amendment offered by Rev. Dr. Worcester was put to vote, and by a vote of 19 to 11, a two-thirds vote being required.

An amendment offered by Rev. Dr. Shinn was finally adopted as a compromise measure. It provided under art. 4 that

The trustees of the hospital shall meet as soon after their election as may be, and elect from their own number a president and a vice-president who shall serve for one year, and until their successors are elected, and by ballot these standing committees: A committee on finance of five members, an executive committee consisting of seven members, which shall include two physicians of each school of medicine, and an auditing committee consisting of two members.

Under this amended article of the bylaws, the physicians will be represented by four of their number on an executive committee of seven elective members, and two members, the president and secretary, ex-officio.

The physicians are satisfied with this arrangement, and the good work of the Newton Cottage Hospital promises to go on harmoniously and successfully for many years to come.

Other changes were made in the bylaws, a section of article XIII being altered to read as follows: "Physicians assisting in the general work of the hospital shall be members of the Massachusetts Medical Society or the Massachusetts Homoeopathic Medical Society and shall receive no pecuniary compensation." The term Medical Board was struck out in all articles where it appeared. Another important change was made in article XIII by which the division of the medical service was left to the discretion of the executive committee. The amendments as a whole will be acted upon at an adjourned meeting to be held in the Eliot church chapel next Monday afternoon.

High School Notes.

The seventh regular meeting of the Lyceum was held last Saturday evening at the school building. There was a very good attendance. Pres. Whitmore presided, the meeting to order at 7.45, and in the absence of the clerk, E. A. Greene was chosen clerk pro tem. Before the debate the following exercises were presented: Song, Miss Davis, '91, with violin obligato by Miss Fyffe; recitation, Miss Nickerson, '91. The bill for the evening was then read by the clerk: Resolved, that a properly adjusted tax on land should be substituted for the present system of taxation. Speaker Whitmore took the chair and called for the report of the committee, which was given by Mr. Tyler, chairman. An interesting debate followed, in which Messrs. Blake, D. C. Greene and Tyler spoke in the affirmative, and Messrs. Howard Whitmore, Stone and Coffin in the negative. During the debate some parliamentary tactics, similar to the last meeting, were indulged in. When the time came to close the debate it was so interesting that it was lengthened ten minutes, after which the closing arguments were given. The vote resulted, ye 11; no 17, thus defeating the speaker and committee. The meeting adjourned at 9.25.

The tug-of-war teams have been putting in some good practice this week, and next Tuesday evening the results of their work will be published.

A pleasant dancing party was given by the young ladies of Newtonville to the gentlemen of the city last Monday evening, in Tremont Hall. The hall was very tastefully decorated with pink and white bunting festooned and draped in fantastic designs. Many of the young ladies wore pink costumes, but most of them were dressed in various shades of blue. The young ladies presented a very charming appearance. The matrons were Mrs. Ellery E. Estes and Mrs. Edward H. Saxton. Miss M. Josephine Woodworth officiated as floor manager and was assisted by Miss Mildred Thompson, Miss Nellie K. Nickerson, Miss Hattie Miller, Miss Alice G. Brackett, Miss Helen M. Cobb, Miss Maude F. Fuller, Miss Marian C. Cobb and Miss Grace G. Stephenson. Among the young ladies present were noticed Misses Edith Gould, Edith Gaffield, Cora Davis, Gertrude Hall, Alice Heckman, Bessie Wakfield, Josephine Arnold, Carrie Coppins, Eleanor Miller, Lenora Soule, Margaret Wallace, Misses Smith, Gere, Thompson, Linder, Cole, Wadleigh, Chandler and Saxton. The young gentlemen who graced the occasion by their presence were Messrs. John Cole, Charles Smith, Geo. Allen, John Arnold, Waldo Henry, Harold Hutchinson, Walter Pulsifer, Claire Williams, Carleton Judkins, Nathan Cutler, Russell Ballou, Jr., A. H. Adams, Herbert Felton, Fred Pratt, Carl Keller, Porter Chase, Mr. Stacy, Mr. Harvey, Mr. Burrage, Mr. Whiston, Mr. Saxton, Mr. Spence, Mr. Singleton, Mr. Fiske, Mr. Linder, Mr. Warner, Mr. Phelps and Mr. Lewis. During the evening refreshments were served by Mr. Barlow.

Many of the large cities in the United States are going to send drawings to a public exhibition to be held at the English High school, Boston, April 9, 10 and 11. It is hoped that our school will send specimens of its work now being done by the pupils.

Next Tuesday evening the Athletic Association will give their exhibition in Armony Hall. This event has been uppermost in the minds of the boys for the past month, and now the time is almost here. The entries this year are more than double those of last year, and many new events are to be added. The young ladies of the school have expressed quite an interest in the meeting and the officers expect to see many of them present to cheer their class teams. So much for this time; next week a full account will be given in this column.

The N. K. C. '93, will hold a party in Tremont Hall, Friday evening, April 10. There will be twenty couples present.

A Famous Horse.

For many years after the Custer massacre, whenever the Seventh Cavalry was paraded, or there was any mounted formation there was present the pathetic sight of an old cavalry charger, saddled and equipped, and led by a trooper on each side, the empty saddle telling the story of the old horse's faithfulness. He was the sole survivor found on the field of the Custer massacre. He belonged to an officer in the regiment, and watched by his master's body, although wounded in a dozen places, for days and nights, and when the rescuers came there he stood, gaunt, starving, wounded, but faithful to the dead man, says an exchange. The late General Sturgis, who was then Colonel of the regiment, and who lost a splendid young son in the fight, issued an order that the horse should be cared for to the end of his days, as attached to the regiment, and that at all mounted formations he should be in line. He lived to a good old age.

The mass of men follow, or think they follow the well forged chains of reason, which logicians deal in; and they delight to find themselves ferried over a stream they never could have forded, and landed upon some irrefragable conclusion. The very populace like to be reasoned with and to be driven in upon a definite doctrine; but no graces of illustration, no powers of oratory, ever avail to induce the crowd to think, or to tread the bottom of a subject.—Taylor.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

TREMONT THEATRE.—Poor Jonathan is termed a comedy-opera, because of its entire departure from the lines usually followed by composers in constructing their works. It is an opera devoid of pink tights and garish costumes, and when first produced in New York the public was partially prepared for a surprise, owing to the announcements made concerning the departing effort. It was amazed at the sight presented before its gaze when the curtain arose on the first act. In place of the customary gilded palace scene, or the pink ballroom, was seen an ordinary modern drawing-room filled with furniture and trappings of an every-day kind. Moving about on the scene were men and women attired in dress suits and Worth gowns, and the dialogue was found to be consistent and interestingly told. The characters were found to be prototypes of people met daily, and the action was carried along with the same precision as respected in the production of modern comedies. The music was found to be of the very highest order, and the result was an instantaneous success. It will be given at the Tremont Theatre, beginning Monday, April 6, by Rudolph Aronson's Opera Company.

GLOBE THEATRE.—Mr. Richard Mansfield returns to Boston next week. There is no other actor on the stage whose annual recurring visits have so much personal as well as theatrical interest. His coming is not only always marked by the presentation of some new distinct type of character creation for the edification and admiration of the public, the judgment of the critic and student, but it is always attended by some feature of personal interest. Mansfield's ambition is great, his earnest interest of his own toward its attainment are so strongly determined that the whole American public has taken a personal interest in his career. For the past few years he had climbed steadily upward in well defined steps, each one of them having an individual character of its own. His latest production, that of Mr. Clyde Fitch's play, "Beau Brummell," is undoubtedly one of his best efforts, and a large audience will greet Mr. Mansfield at the Globe theatre upon the occasion of the opening night next Monday evening. On Wednesday afternoon a special performance of Prince Karl will be given.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.—After an absence of many months, during which his successes have been more pronounced than ever, Mr. W. H. Crane returned to Boston Monday evening with "The Bohemian Girl." He holds the boards at the Hollis Street Theatre.

This time he will remain for three weeks, and, judging by appearances, his sessions will be even more numerous attended than was the case at his last appearance in the "Hub."

In thinking, Mr. Crane is even better in the character than when previously seen here. No one should miss the opportunity for witnessing his performance. Failure to do so is, indeed, a privation.

Mr. H. A. McGlen will see the Boston Theatre filled on Monday evening, April 6, when he presents Hoyt's "A Midnight Bell" as the entertainment for his annual benefit. It is really a pleasure to Mr. McGlen's friends to have an opportunity once a year to bear testimony to their regard for him by attending his benefit entertainment.

Treasurer Phil A. Shea has made so many friends in Boston during his relations with Messrs. Abbey & Schofield that not more than one quarter of them could be contained by the Tremont on a single occasion. However, as many as can obtain admission on the evening of Sunday, April 12, will be sure to be present when "Phil" will have his annual Testimonial benefit. Mr. Shea will have a host of volunteers to appear on the occasion, including some of the greater lights of the comic opera stage, some of the best known comedians, some eminent novelists, and some of the best comedians have been the previous offerings on like occasions, the coming program will surpass them all. Seats can now be obtained at the box office.

The Danger From Corporations.

[From the New Nation.] One of the most serious dangers influences which corporate wealth brings to bear upon legislation proceeds from the great railway companies, which have long been accustomed to be represented in the General Court by men whom they were instrumental in causing to be elected, and from whom they expect obedient service. It is a grave evil when great corporations are enabled to have so potent a share in the shaping of legislation. The evil threatens to become overwhelming when the most important railway systems of the country, as we have recently seen, pass into the hands of a few unscrupulous men, among whom are persons who, for knavery and corrupt practices, have a world-wide reputation. A power over the fortunes, the freedom, and even the lives of their fellows, inconceivable in its far-reaching consequences, is thus placed in the hands of a few irresponsible autocrats. The danger of the exertion of this power from sources without the limits of the state, and, therefore, beyond the reach of our laws, is increasingly imminent.

Therefore, it would be fitting, inasmuch as the railways are the public highways of the country, for the state legislatures to request the Congress of the United States to take possession of the railway lines in the name of the national government, and operate them in behalf of the people for whose service they exist, thus removing one of the most powerful sources of corruption as effecting state legislation.

A Baby Saved.

Since birth my baby had running sores all over his head, and the doctors said that he must die, for they could not heal them. I used everything I ever heard of, but it was no good. He got so bad that he would not nurse. My husband's sister told me to try Sulphur Bitters as it had cured her baby of a similar trouble and the sores commenced to heal. After using two bottles more the sores were all healed and I considered my baby saved.—Mother, Concord, N. H.

A Real Balsam is Kemp's Balsam. The dictionary says, "A balsam is a thick pure, aromatic substance flowing from trees." Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs is the only cough medicine that is the real balsam. Many thin, watery cough remedies are called balsams, but such are not. Look through a bottle of Kemp's Balsam and notice what a pure thick preparation it is. If you cough use Kemp's Balsam. At all druggists'. Large bottles 50c. and $1.

NEWTON TARIFF REFORM CLUB. The Tariff is a Tax.

Every person interested in the subject of the Tariff, is cordially invited to take part in the discussions carried on in this column. Respectful consideration will be given to inquiries, criticisms, and communications of every kind, whether coming from Tariff Reformers, Free Traders or High Protectionists. Address Secretary of the Tariff Reform Club, Newton Centre, Mass.

The Balance of Trade.

Mr. McKinley's remarks on the balance of trade show his ignorance. England has grown rich for a generation with a "balance of trade" always apparently against her. If she receives more than she gives there is a profit. The cost of freight is not reckoned by the "balance of trade" shouters. It is an item we ought to earn and might but for our tariff. Daniel Webster exploded the "balance of trade" humbug three quarters of a century ago by supposing a merchant to take a cargo to one foreign port, exchange it for the products of that country, take that to another foreign port and exchange again, and finally bring home a cargo twice as valuable as he took away. The result would be a "balance of trade" against the country, but a real profit of 100 per cent. In that way England grows rich with "the balance of trade" always against her.

A Persistent Humbug.

Ex-Congressman McKinley said in his speech at Worcester that the only thing that stands between cheap labor in Europe and higher paid labor here is the protective tariff. This is an oft exploded humbug. Why is labor better paid in free trade England than in protected France, Germany, Austria, Italy and Russia? Why are wages cheaper in super-protected Mexico than in unhappy Ireland? A man intelligent enough to blush ought to blush when he uses that stale humbug argument.

It is a Tax.

The Boston Journal smacks its lips over the repeal of the sugar tax. It says: "This has been paid first by the refiners, and ultimately by the consumers." Ah! we thought so, but they would never acknowledge that the tariff is a tax.

After the public has learned from the sugar lesson that the tariff is a tax paid by the consumer, it may occur to it that it will adjust that tax so as to make it as light as possible. Almost the entire sugar tax went to the Government; it was a tax for public uses. That is why Mr. McKinley, legislating against the public and in favor of private interests, threw it overboard. On the same principle he changed the tin plate tax so that instead of yielding the Government $5,000,000 and private parties nothing it should yield the Government nothing and private parties $10,000,000 or $15,000,000. So with the taxes on glass, and clothing, and a hundred other things, which are divided between the Government and American manufacturers, the latter getting the larger part. Mr. McKinley arranged the matter so that the Government should get less and the private parties get more. After the public have found out by the help of the Boston Journal that the tariff is a tax they will insist on being taxed only for the benefit of the Government.

Adding to the Price.

The Dry Goods Economist of New York has been making an examination into the effect of the McKinley law on the American prices of some of the textile fabrics. It points out that low grade cotton velvets, which sold in England at about 10 cents a yard and on which the old duty was 4 cents a yard, pay now a duty of 9 cents a yard, and have had their American wholesale price increased from 15 to 22 1/2 cents a yard. The retail price, which was formerly 25 cents a yard, has now been advanced to from 35 to 40 cents, and, curiously enough, in direct defiance of the statement of the advocates of the McKinley bill, that the increased tax would be paid by the foreigners, the English prices of the goods have been advanced in the last few months so that they are from 10 to 20 per cent. higher than they were before the McKinley law was adopted. This latter change is due merely to fashion; but it shows the entire folly of the reasoning upon which these assumed tax payments were based, and it gives, also, an indication of the pressure of the present tariff law on low-priced commodities, particularly as not a yard of this class of cotton velvet is made, or likely to be made, in the United States.

With Raw Materials Free.

Mr. A. B. Farquhar, of York, Pa., wrote to Colonel McClure in regard to the manufacturers of agricultural implements: "If we had free raw material we could not be undersold by any nation upon the earth. We have such pre-eminent and indefeasible advantages here for manufacturing with our improved machinery, abundant lumber supply and better class of labor, that if we were not at a disadvantage in the purchase of indispensable raw material, we could not only control the markets of the world, but afford to sell implements and machinery considerably cheaper to the American farmer."

Tin Plate.

A correspondent of the New York Evening Post says that since the present tariff law was enacted the anxiety on the part of American consumers of tin plate to secure a supply has had the usual effect when an extraordinary demand is evident in the market. It has caused a rapid advance in prices, equal to over three million dollars on the amount already imported, and which, should values go no higher, will be equal to five million dollars by July 1 when the new tariff goes into effect. "This," adds the writer, "disposes of the claim that the McKinley bill does not advance prices so far as tin plates are concerned." It also disposes of the pretty story that the English manufacturers would pay the difference in duty, due to McKinley's bill, so that prices would remain as they are. The writer in the Evening Post denies the report that the tin-plate industry in this country has yet acquired any respectable, or even notable proportions, and that any establishments are in prospect with a reasonable chance of producing goods enough to affect the market. This is his statement which is in the nature of a challenge.

I feel quite safe in saying that up to the present moment not one among the names who have been quoted as manufacturing tin plates in America can positively assert that they are at present able to manufacture the article at price equal to the present market price in New York.

AMATEUR INTERCLUB BOWLING.

The last game of the Interclub Bowling League series to be rolled on the Arlington Boat Club alleys was won last Friday evening by the Casino bowlers who defeated the Woodland Parks by a very narrow margin.

The first and third strings were won by the Woodland Parks, but the Casinos won the second and the game, with 24 pins to spare.

The visitors were entertained by the Arlington Boat Club at the close of the game. The score:

GOOD SCORES IN A TEAM MATCH.

A game in the Newton club bowling tournament was played Monday evening between teams 2 and 7. The members of the latter team, were in great form, and four out of five men made totals of over 300, Hamilton leading off with a two-string score of 309. The match was easily won by team 7 by 131 pins. Richards made the best score for team 2, knocking down 326 pins. The summary:

West Newton Women's Educational Club.

Dr. Fisher, superintendent of the Tewksbury Almshouse, read a very instructive and interesting paper entitled "Children of Ishmael" before the Women's Educational Club at their last meeting. There is a lamentable increase in the number of criminals according to statistics. Past penal legislation as well as our dealing with them has been utterly at fault. The main basis of character is heredity, which gives a trend to every action of life, but environment goes far in its counteracting influence and educates us whether we will or no. A Catholic bishop has said, give me the first seven years of a child's life, and I care not for the rest. A strong will and upward tendency will absorb the uplifting influences, and a strong will with downward tendency the lower. Physical, mental and moral pauperism lead to crime. Public sentiment is with the poor, therefore it is criminal giving at the door, dispensing charity generally, and too easy ingress and egress from our almshouses makes our paupers. Charity has become a science. We have increased facilities for taking criminals, and they are too often shut up with company as bad or worse than himself. What shall we do with our criminals? It must become a matter of character building. Corporations must be on a higher plane, and not a reward for political service. Criminals of the worst class should be retired from society like cases of smallpox and leprosy until cured. A criminal by heredity who has reached adult life should be regarded as beyond help. Accidental crime does not make a criminal, and should be regarded as curable. We change our bias by our thought, whence comes the new environment. Improve the physical condition and it will help the moral. An indeterminate sentence is an incentive to well doing, and an oft repeated offender should be remanded to prison without trial of the courts. Moral traits are transmitted more certainly than physical. Disease is most easily treated in its incipient stages, and accordingly with moral disease. The work of reform must be in the line of heredity. Public sentiment must be changed, and the helping, protecting arm of society thrown about these unfortunates as they come from our penitentiaries or reformatory work will count for much.

Several gentlemen were present and an interesting discussion of the subject followed. The papers before the next meeting of the club will be by Miss Tryon of Cambridge, upon our "Peasantry Neighbors." Children of the members are invited.

Entirely Innocent: "Who carried off the gates of Gaza?" asked the Sunday-school superintendent. It was the second morning after Halloween, and twentyseven indignant boys rose up at once and said they hadn't had anything at all to do with it.—Chic go Tribune.

Happy Meeting of Two Friends.
John M. Allen, of Charlotte, N. Y., said to his friend, "Parsons, I am about dead with the Gravel, and cannot find help." Mr. Parsons induced Mr. Allen to give Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y., a trial. Weeks went by and the friends met, Mr. Allen said, "Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy has saved my life. It is a sure cure for Gravel."

THE COTTAGE HOSPITAL.

The outcome of the meeting of the Cottage Hospital corporation is very gratifying to all friends of the Hospital, and what threatened to cause trouble has turned out to be only a means of still further increasing the efficiency of the governing board of the Hospital. It is hardly necessary to say that the result is quite as satisfactory to the trustees as to the physicians, and the plan adopted is one that had been talked over by the trustees and officers of the Hospital and regarded with great favor.

The placing of four physicians on the executive committee will give the physicians a standing and influence that they never had under the old arrangement, which savored rather too much of red tape, and prevented any cordial sympathy and co-operation between the two boards, as they met at different times and so did not have opportunity to become acquainted with each other. Each acted independently and sooner or later some friction was bound to reveal itself. Practically consolidating the two will give much more simplicity to the management of the Hospital and it is such a common sense plan that it is strange it was not adopted in the first place.

The executive committee will now consist of nine members, two from each school of medicine, three trustees, and the president and clerk of the board who are members ex-officio. The doctors are now given perfect equality with the other members of the executive committee, and will be able to tell at first hand to the governing body the medical wants of the Hospital. They only lack one of a majority of the board, but it is much more probable that any other division will be made than one strictly between doctors and laymen. This distinction will probably not appear again, and even if it should the advantage seems to be against the laymen, as they have no common bond to incline them to all vote one way, and their votes will probably be scattered. But no division is probable with such men as represent the board of trustees and those who will be chosen to represent the medical profession, and with better acquaintance there will be the greatest harmony, all working together for the success of the Hospital.

There have been any number of rumors of course, most of them greatly exaggerated, and it is fortunate that such a satisfactory arrangement has been reached. Any contests that may arise now can be talked over and adjusted in the board meetings so that there will be no occasion for exaggerated stories in sensational daily papers, which have to procure something spicy, whether it is true or not, in order to secure readers. All the difficulty that has existed would probably have been disposed of at the beginning had the two boards been one body and had a chance to meet and talk over matters in a friendly way.

PARTISAN CITY POLITICS.

Boston city politics have been quite prominent in the daily papers this week, and the way they are managed is shown by ex-City Architect Atwood's offer to Mayor Matthews. On condition that the latter kept him in office, Mr. Atwood offered to turn over enough Republican support to re-elect Mr. Matthews for another year according to the latter's story. The Mayor promptly removed the architect from office, yet the occurrence throws a good deal of light on the inside workings of politics in Boston and the way deals and dickers are made between the politicians of both parties. Mr. Atwood denies the charges, but there seems to be no question that there had been more politics in the city architect's office, than was good for the office, and all this will be changed by the new appointee, Mr. Wheelwright, who is a very talented architect and not a politician. Mayor Matthews is meeting with a good deal of criticism, but too much of it is inspired simply by politics. He may make mistakes, as other Boston mayors have done before him, but all but the most rabid politicians are willing to concede that taken as a whole his administration promises to be an advance towards a more business like city government. But his experience and even the criticisms passed upon him show to what an extent politics dominates the government of a large city, and how impossible it is to secure a purely business-like and non-partisan government, when so many men stand ready to condemn everything that is done by an official of an opposite party, or to praise or defend every action of a member of their own party. The good of the city is as nothing to such men, and party is everything, and as long as such views prevail in large cities it is hopeless to expect good government. Here in Newton we have a city government utterly devoid of politics, and so the sole question considered is the best way of advancing the interests of the city. The plan that has been talked about, of annexing the suburbs to Boston, will never be popular in the suburban cities, as long as Boston men and papers take such narrow and partisan views of the functions of a city government. No city can be well governed when national politics is made the sole issue in judging of all municipal questions and officials, no matter which party happens to be in power, and it is to the credit of some of the Boston papers that they seem to fully recognize this, and strive to treat the different city officials on their merits simply, without regard to which party they may happen to belong.

THE SEWERAGE HEARING.

The question of sewerage assessments will be still further discussed next Monday evening, at the continued hearing, and the city government seem disposed to give every one who wishes a chance to give his views in regard to this very important matter. It is said that the next meeting will be the most interesting of all, and those who like to hear lively sparring between advocates of different plans will miss a great treat if they do not attend.

The city government have found it advisable to place the hearings some weeks apart, so that the members may have time to recover from one hearing before they are called upon to undergo another, and possibly the hearings may last until vacation time, as there is no particular hurry about coming to any immediate decision in regard to the matter.

The bill to have new railroad stock sold at public auction was defeated of course, as the railroads did not wish it to pass, but no one seems able to explain the remarkable change in the sentiment of the house, within a week, in regard to the bill. Evidently some lively work must have been done by some interested parties.

The pamphlets containing the stenographic report of the last Sewerage hearing have been issued and contain 43 pages. Besides the addresses printed in the papers, they contain the addresses of Mr. D. W. Farquhar, Mr. Marcus Morton, Mr. John W. Carter and Mr. David F. Inglis.

The streets have received their spring cleaning this week, but the clouds of dust have been very disagreeable and there has been loud demands for the water carts to come out, before all the dust was breathed in or swallowed by suffering humanity.

According to the monthly reports of the Board of Health for January and February, just issued, the death rate for the former month was 13.78 per 1,000 and for the latter 9.35, a remarkably low average, which shows the healthfulness of Newton.

The drop in the price of sugar illustrates what pays the tariff taxes, and it will probably strengthen still further the demand for a downward revision of the high tariff duties.

The coffee party given by St. John's church, Tuesday evening, was a pleasing success. About 150 tickets were sold and about half that number attended. Dancing was the opening of the entertainment, fully one hundred couples being included in the march. A good supper was served to 30 in the basement of the church, after which dancing continued the evening.

The last series of concerts of the Star Course was given in Boyden Hall, Wednesday evening, before a fair sized audience. Four pupils of the New England Conservatory of music gave brilliant exhibitions of instrumental and vocal duets, recitations and readings. The concerts were arranged by members of the M. E. society, and all have been successfully carried out through their efforts.

Logan Adams, colored, an employee at the chemical works of Billings, Clapp & Co., was found dead last Monday morning by one of the employees. He had been in the habit of late sleeping at the works, and it is stated that his may have helped the sickness which he had been troubled with. Medical Examiner Hodgson of Dedham viewed the remains and stated that he believed the cause of death. The news of the death greatly surprised the people here. The funeral took place from the house of James Humphrey and the body buried in the church grounds.

CHARLES WARD POST TO CELEBRATE ITS 25TH ANNIVERSARY.

In accordance with general order No. 18 of the commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, Charles Ward Post No. 62, of the department of Massachusetts, will have a service commemorating the 25th anniversary of the organization of the Grand Army of the Republic in the Universalist church, Newtonville, 7:45 p. m., Monday, April 6th. To this service the clergy, press, school children and citizens are cordially invited to be present and participate.

CHARLES W. SWEETLAND, Commander Charles Ward Post 62.

The Nonantum Summer School.

Those who have been interested in the school in the past, and who know the good service done by it last summer to the boys and girls of Nonantum, to the boys by the carpenter's shop, and to the girls by the sewing and cooking schools—will be glad to learn that it is to be opened again this season. The school has fully demonstrated its usefulness in the past, and its desirability in this quarter of our city is too obvious to call for comment. A large number of the girls here are so situated as to make any suitable home training in domestic matters next to impossible, or reduce to the minimum the time they can devote to their education, while the boys eagerly embrace the opportunity to learn something of the use of carpenter's tools under the guidance of a competent instructor. Experience shows that our charity can take no safer or better form than that of helping others to help themselves; and in nothing could the ladies of the Social Science Club have shown better their sagacity and philanthropy alike than in starting this school. For what instruction is better than teaching good housekeeping, wholesome cooking, plain sewing, economical mending? The ladies of the Social Science Club fully recognize the value of such training, and therefore they have never for a moment entertained the thought of giving up their enterprise, except as it should be assumed that the city government would take this school over, and that the ladies would be asked to give up their enterprise. This last remark is called for, because in one particular these ladies seem to have been misled. A petition was presented by the Social Science Club to the late city council, asking for the appropriation from the public treasury of $500 for the support of this school. By the joint action of the city council this petition was referred to the school board, and the report of the action of that board, as published in the papers, has given the erroneous impression that the ladies asked this money for their own club, to be expended by its officers. It should be distinctly stated that this was not sought, and that the intention of the petitioners was only to call the attention of our city government to the subject and to the desirability of the school as a part of our public school system. In this light it was considered by the school board, and the decision was reached to adopt into its system the principle of Vacation and Industrial Schools. To this conclusion the board was brought by the petitioners in all the round of "Associated Charities" that claim the sympathy and co-operation of our citizens, it will be hard to find anything that appeals more strongly to reason and philanthropy than this Nonantum school.

NEWTON AND WALTHAM.

SOME OF THE PLACES NEWTON PEOPLE VISIT.

The electric cars have caused a good deal of travel between Newton and Waltham, people going over for the ride, and taking occasion while there to visit the stores on Moody street. One chief point of attraction now is the new Lincoln block a few doors from Hall's corner, the opposite direction from the street car tracks. The block is a handsome one and the stores are very handsomely fitted up. Saul Brothers, the popular jewellers, have a large store, 70 feet deep by 20 wide into which they have recently moved. The store is finished in southern pine, with show cases and wall cabinets in cherry, which are filled with silver ware, watches of the best makes, clocks, jewelry, etc. Mr. E. U. Saul has had 22 years experience in the business and was formerly a master workman for the U. S. Watch company. His specialty is the repairing of fine watches and French clocks, and Newton people who desire his services can give their orders by postal card, and they will receive prompt attention. The block also employ a skilled optician of 12 years experience, and have all the modern appliances for testing the eyes, and will fit the most difficult eyes to glasses. It is only a few minutes ride from a large part of Newton, and visitors will be sure of prompt and careful attention. Another store of especial interest to ladies in the new block is that of J. W. Macurdy, who has the largest and finest display of millinery goods to be found outside of Boston. His store is 80 feet deep and he carries all the latest styles in millinery goods, besides a great number of articles which ladies want. He makes a specialty of kid gloves, and carries a very full assortment. Mr. Macurdy has many patrons in Newton, and he extends a special invitation to call and see him in his new and larger store, where there is abundant room for the display of goods.

Another store in the new block is occupied by the firm of Atwood & Shaw, who were formerly with the Walker & Pratt mfg. Co. of Watertown, and have the Waltham agency for the Walker & Pratt furnaces, stoves and other goods. They carry also a large line of the Plymouth Foundry goods, and have already many patrons in West Newton and Auburndale, in which village their team is frequently seen. They have also the celebrated Crawford range, and carry a full stock of hardware, cutlery, tools, paints, oil, glass, etc., having as fine a stock as one could find in Boston. They also do plumbing and gas fitting, which is managed by experienced hands and the work is guaranteed to be satisfactory. Their number is 137 Moody street and orders can be given by postal card, and will receive prompt and careful attention.

Lasell Notes.

The week of Easter holidays at Lasell closed Thursday morning April 2 when the school reassembled. Most of the teachers and pupils were away at their homes or visiting friends. About forty remained at the school making trips to Boston or to neighboring towns occasionally, hearing celebrities and other opportunities for enjoyment.

Friday evening March 27, a party attended the meeting at the New Old Church where they heard addresses from Rev. Mr. Gordon, Dr. Brooke Hereford and other distinguished ministers of Boston.

The party of pupils that visited Washington under escort of Mr. Wm. T. Shepherd, returned Wednesday April first greatly delighted with the trip. They had enjoyed the trip very much, and had seen the White House, and had each shaken hands with the President; Mrs. General Logan had given them a delightful reception; Captain Brooks, chief of the United States Secret Service had spent an evening with them at their hotel, and had entertained them with some thrilling experiences with which his position makes him acquainted. Miss Carpenter had a delightful chapter, and the fine weather helped to make the week a perfect success.

If You Want to Paint Your House

The Downy Woodpeckers.

In a country town in the center of Massachusetts in an old-fashioned house with its back windows looking out on a grassy yard, and commanding a view of a large, thrifty apple tree which stood between the house and barn. Two dissatisfied boys, James and Eben, stood at these windows, complaining bitterly of the February thaw which has set in and was spoiling their skating pond. Their attention was diverted from themselves by a loud click in the apple tree and then another. They saw two birds in black and white plumage flitting from bough to bough. "I almost know they are downy woodpeckers," said James, the elder of the boys; "see them pecking at the bark all around the trunk." In fact, the birds seemed to have a system of work and were carefully examining not only the trunk and large branches but also every smallest twig. The tree was a large one and it took them all the hour before breakfast and all the breakfast time to do their task. They were just flying off when James caught sight of the red patch on the crown of the male, which settled the matter that they were really a pair of downy woodpeckers. The birds having done their work and got a good breakfast at the same time, flew away to an orchard behind the barn.

There they had a snug home all to themselves, in the heart of an old tree, which nobody knew of and never would have known of had not a skater one day thrust his hand down the hollow. The frightened pair flew out. This, then, was their winter home, where they could cuddle side by side, and the most piercing winds could not reach them nor the most icy storm. They need only come out when the sun was shining and the air was still.

Spring came to them as to all the bird race. When they felt its warm breath Mr. Downy, he of the red cap, told his mate it was time they were getting ready for summer housekeeping, and a family of little ones. "This place," said he, "is too big for that. A blue jay or perhaps a crow could get in here and scare the youngsters to death. I must go and find a new home where all can be safe and happy." His little mate looked at him with wonder as he talked so wisely in bird language, and she almost swooned with admiration when she saw how the jaunty red cap on the back of his head had brightened up till it shone like flame.

She timidly replied "he knew best," and they went forth for a fly. They examined every knot-hole of the trees near the house; none seemed to suit him, so they went back to the winter home and rested. At daybreak next morning Mr. Downy slipped out alone. He came back before his mate was half awake and whispered in her ear that he had found the very spot, "so cute and so safe; wouldn't she go look at it?" She replied "she would as soon as she had made her toilet." She stepped out of the nest on to a bough where the sun shone and there she dressed every feather with her bill, twitching and jerking some and straightening others till she looked as fine as any lady of the land. Then without more ado she followed her mate.

On the northern side of the old apple tree the children were looking at, that February morning was one bare bough, with two branches coming out at right angles. This was the one chosen by Mr. Downy. Madam, following him, looked into two holes in the tree, but he with a jerk of his head said "those were not fit for a dainty dame like her. He was going to make a brand new one." With a rousing din he attacked the bare bough where he had already outlined the circular entrance on the under side where wind and rain could not reach it. If his cap was entrancing his drumming was thrilling, and his little mate was so overcome she could only timidly nod her encouragement.

And soon said that both birds work at the hole, but in this case only the red-capped bird did the labor. The female may have been a very young bird, for she appeared shy and kept herself concealed for the most part in the leafy boughs. Downy began his work that very day, breaking the bark with loud strokes that made the chips fly in every direction.

One week the bird carpenter labored. He would drum awhile. Then sit down to rest beside his gentle partner and tell her again and again "it was all for her." At the end of that week he could get his head in a little bit. At the end of the second week he could get his whole body in. Then he disappeared within. At the end of the third week the birds who had watched all the "goings-on" in their tree, saw a cloud of dust flit from the hole, and they declared Mrs. Downy was sweeping out her new house, and they wondered if she did it with her tail.

It was a fine house; its door was a perfect circle; its passage went straight in two or three inches, then turned at a right angle and went down 10 or 12 inches. The walls were clean and smooth and the mansion smelled sweetly of the fragrant apple tree.

James and Eben from the back door steps said to each other, "It would be such fun to have a brood of downies raised there." But alas for the birds, their best laid plans "at gang a-gley." A pair of house-sparrows had long had their eyes on the little carpenter, and they meant to steal his house. While the downies were planning one Saturday night that they would move into their new quarters the very next morning, this wicked pair sought out the whole clan of their relatives and asked their help to take possession of Downy's hard-earned home.

The next morning, when the pair of woodpeckers came to the tree, they found a female sparrow just slipping into the round entrance, while her mate sat on the perch near by with head very erect, prepared to do battle. At the sight fire flashed from the eyes of the red-capped bird and he rushed pell-mell at the cock sparrow—the impudent robber. But the signal was given somehow, and in a moment the whole flock of house-sparrows were upon him, screaming and tearing at him. Downy made a good fight with beak and claw, resting on the bough at times to take breath, then up and at them again. For more than an hour the battle continued. Then the robbers found discretion the better part of valor and flew away. Only the first pair was left, and these meant to gain by strategy and persistence what they could not obtain by open fight.

At this point of the contest Downy's timid mate, who had been hovering in the outer edges of the tree, stole up behind the bough of contest, then peeped around first on one side, then on the other, but did not go up to the hole.

row again and again. Every time as he was about to strike him, the robber sitting on a swaying twig dived downward and escaped the blow. The female sparrow took this opportunity to slip into the hole, she remained in so long that Downy had the sense to see it was no use for him to be fighting the male while the female was taking possession and perhaps laying an egg. At noon of the day he gave up the fight and retired with his mate. One can fancy the chucklings of the robbers as they surveyed the handsome apartment to which they had not given a stiver of work. "So clean, so snug, for a winter home!" Al well-a-day!

James and Eben were fairly boiling over with indignation as they saw their favorites thus ousted from their belongings. They told their father. He said "If woodpeckers can not have the hole they made themselves, no other bird shall have it." He brought a ladder and the hole was plugged up and all other holes in the tree too; the male sparrow sitting on a neighboring bough and protesting with harsh notes all the time. This was done on Monday morning and the tree was quite empty of bird-life till the next Saturday. In the middle of the forenoon of that day Redcap was seen exploring the bare branch. He found the plug and in a trice was drumming at its lower edge; his mate meanwhile was moving uneasily from branch to branch. By noon he had opened the entrance enough for her to squeeze in, which she promptly did, and no doubt laid her first white egg in the smooth hollow. Everything now went on like a fairy tale. Whenever Madam went into the house Master sat aloft and drummed softly on the bough. When she came out he sat down affectionately beside her. In two or three weeks the young were hatched and both birds could be seen flying back and forth with food for them. When one came with an insect the other flew away. This they did at short intervals all day long from very early morning till very late at night. Soon the chattering of the young birds could be heard near the entrance. When they came out no one knew exactly, but several young ones on a sunny day were seen following the parents around the apple tree. The two that came into fair sight were like the old birds, one with a red cap, the other without. They looked plumper in body and more spic and span in their feathers than the pair who had gone through the wear and tear of raising them.

But that is the way also with human beings. The faded woman must not be judged by herself alone. Her children must be judged with her. They may be her crown of glory.—Springfield Republican.

Rev. Dr. Clarke's Schooling.

Taverner in the Boston Post has some interesting comments on Rev. James Freeman Clarke's account of his school days. He says:

The autobiographic fragment by the late Dr. James Freeman Clarke, entitled "My Schooling," which is printed in the current number of the Atlantic, has received it seems to me, a good deal of attention—public attention at all events—than it deserves. For not only is this paper an interesting reminiscence of a remarkable man, but it offers timely comment on the present state of education. Until he was 10 years old, Dr. Clarke tells us, he had most of his tuition in his grandfather's house, a Quaker, of whom he spoke so finely on the hundredth anniversary of Freeman's birth. "I did not know at the time," he says, "what a wonderful teacher he was. He anticipated, sixty years ago, the best methods of modern instruction." These were, briefly, the making of study interesting, the requirement only of what was essential, and the removal of unnecessary difficulties.

Only a small Latin grammar was regularly studied—the larger one being kept for reference—and the dictionary was as sparingly used. The more important Latin words were learned from a vocabulary, the more important Greek ones from the "Greek Primitives"; and then, with no impediments of rules and exceptions and odd words lumbering up their little heads, those favored children (the boy's sister and his elder brother shared the studies), although born in a pedantic time, were led by their grandfather directly to the classics of Greece and Rome. If they came to a word they did not understand, he told it them, but—and this should be noted—he required them "to repeat it again and again" until he was sure of their having remembered it. Under this system Dr. Clarke, before he was ten years old, had read "a good deal of Ovid, some odes of Horace, a little of Virgil, the Gospel of St. John in Greek, and had gone as far as cubic equations in algebra." All children of that age, it goes without saying, would not have accomplished such things under any system, but it speaks well of Freeman's teaching that even a boy of unusual gifts should have mastered so much. A deal of the good work was done by presenting work under the aspect of play—a method, then novel, which our more sophisticated children have learned to suspect.

I must pass over a large and most readable portion of this paper—a portion dealing with the children's rambles at will in their grandfather's free library, and the treasures of good English literature they found there—to say a word of the contrast forced upon this Boston boy of seventy years ago when he was sent to the Latin school. There all the old traditions of grammar and dictionary were observed, and Dr. Clarke thought that even to-day the study of the dictionary, as he called it, is far too often seen, although the kindred tyranny of grammar has in great degree disappeared. He was probably aware of the honorable exceptions which have been introduced by courses in "reading at sight" at the best schools and colleges; but he was right in his general belief on the subject. Pedagogues still bow the knee before the dictionary. And Dr. Clarke was right, too, in recommending most earnestly a greater simplicity in text books, which should be content—he shrewdly said—to begin at the beginning.

There are some of us, moreover, who are still old-fashioned enough to applaud the very small number of subjects which Freeman allowed his grandchildren to study. The boys and girls of this day are expected, like so many little Bacons, "to take all knowledge for their province," with the result that such humble attempts at work as reading and writing is too often overlooked in the wide domain. If any man doubt it, let him ask his young son or his young daughter, or his friend's son and daughter, if he has neither of his own, to read aloud—at sight—a page of plain English, or to write a letter expressing any connected thought. He may have the happiness of finding himself father of near grown-up children to the exception which proves the rule.

Johnson's Anodyne Liniment takes the lead; there is none better," says a Boston druggist.

Death of Loring B. Barnes.

Loring B. Barnes died at his home in Auburndale on Sunday afternoon, after a protracted illness which had kept him from business nearly a year, and for a month past confined him to his bed. Mr. Barnes was born near Dublin, N. H., and was 76 years old. He came to Boston while a young man, and was long engaged there in the wholesale grocery business, or in collateral branches, such as brokerage in tea and tobacco. In 1875 he went to Philadelphia, but did not long remain there. He returned to Boston and was concerned in various enterprises, the latest being a stock-brokerage concern, from which he withdrew about five years ago, and had not since taken an active part in any business. He was in 1862 and 1863 a member of the Boston Common Council, and was once proposed as a candidate for Mayor by the Democratic party, but declined a nomination on account of his business. He came to Auburndale to live about fifteen years ago.

Mr. Barnes was largely and chiefly known through his connection with the Handel and Haydn Society. He joined the society in 1851 and served on the board of government for three successive years, beginning in May, 1853. It was at this period that the necessity for greater aggressiveness on the part of the society was made apparent. The institution, from various causes, had suffered a loss of prestige, most of all from the competition which other choral societies presented, as much in the progressive character of their purposes as in their performances. It was evident that something must be done to save the society, and in May, 1856, the late Charles F. Chickering was elected president and the subject of the notice was chosen secretary. It is an interesting coincidence that the death of these two gentlemen came so near together. The first movement of the new power was to organize a music festival, the first held by the society, May, 1857. This event is said to have been the first really worthy music festival held in this country.

Mr. Barnes remained at the post of secretary fifteen successive years, and was then elected president for four years in succession, beginning in 1871. During his secretaryship the society made steady strides onward and upward in public esteem, in financial strength and in character as an organization. It is no extravagance to say that much of this progress was due to Mr. Barnes's persistent labors, sometimes with little or no aid from other members of the government. Naturally there were engendered criticisms on the "one-man power," but at this moment one who recalls the unfavorable surroundings, the defective musical culture which found so much satisfaction in Neukomm's "David" as in "The Messiah," and the indifference, not to say unwillingness to hear an unfamiliar work, though by an acknowledged master, must admit that but for this autonomy the society might not have survived the perils of the time.

While Mr. Barnes was secretary the semi-centennial of the society was celebrated by a festival (1895) and the triennial festivals of 1898 and 1871 were held. His duties, and his determination to secure the best singers for the Handel and Haydn concerts brought him into association or correspondence with noted artists everywhere, and his name was familiar to musical connoisseurs all over the United States and in London as well. The permanent fund of the society, now about $30,000, was started from the earnings of the festival of 1895, largely at Mr. Barnes's urging. Mr. Barnes often found time to write on various matters relating to music, and his name was prominent in early scenes or of people with whom he had met, and even indulged himself at times in the writing of verse and other literature.

BOOKS AND MAGAZINES.

ST. NICHOLAS.

Mrs. Mary Hallock Foote writes of "The Gates on Grandfather's Farm" for the April St. Nicholas, and illustrates the sketch in her own agreeable way. The second paper of "My Autograph Book" by Edward Livingston Welles, contains a characteristic and therefore most charming letter which Thackeray wrote to Mr. Wells—on a boy's sending him a letter to this country. Mr. Tudor Jenks, Mr. Noah Brooks and Mr. J. T. Trowbridge are among the other contributors. The lack of good verse for children is conspicuous because now and then Miss Wilkins or some one else writes a piece with the definite quality of "Little Mary Ellen's Going to the Head," which was Miss Wilkins' contribution to juvenile literature last month.

THE ATLANTIC.

The April number of the Atlantic Monthly opens with "The Brazen Android." This story, with the peculiar title, is by the late W. C. Crogan, O'Connor, and is a well-told story of old London. "The House of Martha," by Mr. Stockton, continues to be of much interest. Mr. Lowell pursues his travels through "Not to an Unexplored Corner of Japan." The second paper on "The Capture of Louisiana by the New England Militia," by Francis Parkman, is marked with the skill with which Mr. Parkman accomplishes all his work. "Prehistoric Man on the Pacific Coast," by George Frederick Wright, is one of the valuable contributions of the number. Hon. S. G. W. Benjamin writes upon "The Armenians and the Porte." The poetry of the magazine is worthy of note. Thomas W. Parsons contributes the serial, "The House of the Bacteria." The Rev. T. U. Dudley, D. D., furnishes a most readable and appreciative essay upon "Thomas Hood; Funster, Poet, Preacher." The serial, "In the Stranger People's Country," by Charles Egbert Craghead, grows in charm and interest. "The Court Theatre of Meiningen," by Charles Waldstein, and "Argentine Provincial Sketches," by Theodore Child, will both be read with interest. "Don Carlos," by Margaret Crosby, is the short story of the number, and is a well told and clearly developed sketch.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE.

The April number of Harper's magazine gives to its readers an unusual amount of entertaining reading. It opens with an interesting and well illustrated article upon "The French Army," by General Lewal. Hon. W. F. Vilas writes upon "The State of Wisconsin," giving a brief history of the state, and of some of the men prominent in its annals. "Wessex Folk," by Thomas Hardy, continues to be of interest. T. Mitchell Prudden, M. D., contributes an article entitled "Glimpses of the Bacteria." The Rev. T. U. Dudley, D. D., furnishes a most readable and appreciative essay upon "Thomas Hood; Funster, Poet, Preacher." The serial, "In the Stranger People's Country," by Charles Egbert Craghead, grows in charm and interest. "The Court Theatre of Meiningen," by Charles Waldstein, and "Argentine Provincial Sketches," by Theodore Child, will both be read with interest. "Don Carlos," by Margaret Crosby, is the short story of the number, and is a well told and clearly developed sketch.

"The Bering Sea Controversy," by Hon. E. J. Phelps, is doubtless the article that will receive the most attention, dealing with an important issue of the day, and with a subject to which he has devoted much study. Mr. Phelps's views will be received with thoughtful attention. The poems of the number are notably good, and the Editorial departments well supported and full of valuable suggestions.

LITERARY NOTES.

The next number of Harper's Bazar will contain the opening chapters of a brilliant extravaganza by Howard Pyle, entitled "A Modern Aladdin, or the Wonderful Adventures of Oliver Munier," with characteristic illustrations by the author.

W. D. Howell's Hazard of New Fortunes and Annie Kilburn have just been published in a cheep form by Harper & Co. and are the latest additions to their "Franklin Square Library."

Harper's Young People has something attractive to offer to young gardeners in the way of a "Garden Contest." It proposes to give one hundred prizes to those who prove the best cotton "planters." Anybody may compete, whether subscribers or not, and schools are especially invited to do so. Cotton, it is said, will grow in the North if properly cared for.

The current number of Harper's Bazar is an Easter number, and as such contains many special attractions. Among these are the mentioned New England story by Mary E. Wilkins, accompanied by a superb full page illustration, a story by Hamilton Ormsbee, also illustrated, a story by Harriet Prescott Spofford entitled "Grandma's," and a timely article by Olive Thorne Miller on "The Woman's Club in Evolution." All of these are short articles and are contributed by Francis J. Dyer, Lucy C. Lillie, Mary H. Kront, Rev. Theron H. Brown and other popular writers. The fashion articles and illustrations include evening and visiting costumes by Worth, drawn for Harper's Bazar in Paris. The number is as bright as the season, and is pervaded by the Easter spirit.

Somebody has said that in this country every man is a man of business, and it might also be said with equal truth now-days, every man is in some sense a socialist. Socialism is in the air. Even the young Emperor of Germany is suspected of it. A man who is not conversant with the theory of nationalism, and with the communistic experiences of the past, can hardly be said to be a thorough well educated man. It is with peculiar interest therefore that one reads Lewis G. Wilson's article "Hopdale and Its Founder" in the New England Magazine for April. Adin Ballou was really a more notable socialist than any one of the members of the Brook Farm community. He strikes one as being more in earnest than the Brook Farm socialists, and his remarkable friendship with Tolstoi shows how highly his work was regarded by that great unassuming visionary. The Hopdale community lasted longer than any similar experiment either on this continent or in Europe. Its history is the old, old one of the discrepancy between human aspiration and human attainment, and all interested in socialism should read it.

AN INGENUOUS BOSTONIAN.

A MAN WHO MAKES AN OPPORTUNITY OF THE WEST END'S EXTREMITY.

There is one man in Boston to whom the West End Railway Company is a great convenience, outside of the advantages he derives from the organization in the way of transportation. This worthy citizen resides in the Roxbury district, and almost directly in front of his dwelling is one of the large iron guy posts which supports the trolley wire. Now it is a well-known fact that the overhead system of the West End Company is so constructed that a large amount of the electricity generated at the different power stations is lost before it reaches the point where it performs its work by reason of defective insulation. This is caused by leakage of the current down the wet poles whenever there is rain or indeed to a large extent when there is moisture in the atmosphere. It is estimated that over 50 per cent of the current generated goes to waste, and what is more, the company has tried in vain to remedy the trouble.

Now, the ingenious citizen above referred to was one day handling the water pipe which runs into his house, and was surprised at receiving quite a severe shock. This led him to investigate, and he discovered that the water pipe entered the building very near the guy post of electric railway. Here was an opportunity not to be lost. He purchased some rubber tubing, and after making a few experiments, which he was enabled to do by a limited knowledge of electrical science, he proceeded to equip his house with wires, lamps and other contrivances. He then connected his storage battery with the electrified water pipe, and he soon had the battery fully charged. From the battery he lights his house from top to bottom, and in the morning, before going down town to business, he simply turns on the water pipe connection, and when night comes the battery is ready for its evening work. He has been so lighting his dwelling for some time at no inconvenience or expense, and in addition he operates an electric fan, a system of call bells and a burglar alarm. The West End people are by no means ignorant of the fact, but as the electricity thus used would otherwise be wasted, and as the company is in no way affected by the draught upon its dynamo, the clever scheme is not interfered with. There is at least one man in Boston, who considers the overhead electric system a grand good thing.

Liver Complaint.

Being subject to liver troubles, I have tried many medicines, but have never found an equal to Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, made at Rondout, N. Y. It stimulates the stomach and liver, regulates the bowels, and has proved of such value that I would not be without it.—Mrs. Fred Sheidon, cor. Bridge and Division streets, W. Catskill, N. Y.

Senator Hiseock was in the Senate gallery with a constituent, says the Indianapolis Journal, pointing out great men. The visitor asked for Senator Saunders of Montana, famous for leading a vigilance committee in the early days on the frontier. Hiseock could not find the Montana man, so he pointed out Senator Hoar. After the New York senator's friend had gazed long and earnestly at Mr. Hoar's pious and philanthropic countenance, he exclaimed: "Well, any one could see at a glance that Saunders was a harem man, one of the worst characters in Montana. I don't see how he got in here, any way."

In Memory of Bishop Benjamin H. Paddock.

BY N. W.

God has called away our Bishop,
Who with us has been so long,
Him to glory he has taken
There to join the heavenly throng.

Many are there who will miss him,
He has been so good and great,
He to us has been a tower,
In this dear New England state.

In defence of wholesome doctrine,
He was ever firm and strong,
Working, watching, always guarding Against whatever was weak and wrong.

Long his memory will be with us,
As his voice we seem to hear,
Teaching those who stood around him
Truth in solemn tones and clear.

Let us pray that God may send us
One like him to take his place,
That our churches all may prosper
In God's wisdom, truth, and grace.

Mr. Younghusband (to his wife)—
Where's the cook?
Mrs. Y. (whispering)—She's gone off.
Mr. Y.—What's the matter?
Mrs. Y.—I handled her carelessly, I didn't know she was loaded.—Washington Star.

Aunt Sally: "Goodness me! How can the President be extravagant with the people's money?" Uncle Peasbrow: "What's the matter, mother?" "Only think of keeping those pesky Indians on Government preserves."

Mother: "Goodness me! Johnny! Johnny! why ain't you at school, instead of hurrahing around the streets like a wild Indian?" Johnny, dancing a jig: "No school to-day!" Mother: "No school? Why?" Johnny: "Teacher's dead."

Said an elderly lady, remarkable for her plumpness and asperity, to an eminent Q. C., renowned for his atrocious sarcasm: "What do you think of my daughter to-night, Mr. Z? Don't you think she looks well?" "Really, Lady X, I am not competent to pronounce an opinion. I do not profess to be a judge of painting. But I have no doubt she is argyle." "Well and pray, Mr. Z, did you ever see an angel that was not painted?"

Peculiar

Many peculiar points make Hood's Sarsaparilla superior to all other medicines. Peculiar in combination, proportion, and preparation of ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses the full curative value of the best known remedies of the vegetable kingdom. Peculiar in its strength and economy—Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine which can truly be said, "One Hundred Doses One Dollar." Medicines in larger and smaller bottles require larger doses, and do not produce as good results as Hood's.

Peculiar in its medicinal merits, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown, and has won for itself the title of "The greatest blood purifier ever discovered." Peculiarly "good name at home,"—there is now more of Hood's Sarsaparilla sold in Lowell, where it is made, than of all other blood purifiers. Peculiar in its phenomenal record of sales abroad, no other preparation has ever attained such popularity in so short a time, and its popularity and confidence among all classes of people so steadfastly.

Do not be induced to buy other preparations, but be sure to get the Peculiar Medicine, Hood's Sarsaparilla.

—Mr. W. Z. Ripley and Prof. Dewey of the Institute of Technology addressed the Central Labor Union of Boston, Sunday afternoon, on the subject of Manual training. Mr. Ripley was the first speaker and his remarks are summarized by the Boston Herald as follows: "There is much to be said in favor of an industrial training for grammar school pupils. Children so instructed will not be made master workmen, but they will be given much practical knowledge of the mechanic arts, and they will learn the proper use of tools. There should be something for the boys to do who cannot go into the country. They will derive many advantages from such knowledge, and they will be taught to exercise their constructive faculties. By building or constructing something a boy acquires more knowledge than he can from a book.
The knowledge so acquired will not cause the boy to throw any man out of work. To instruct a boy how to repair woodwork, plastering or a brick wall, or how to cook bread, and to do many other things which he has at present no opportunity to learn, tends to make him industrious and give him a proper appreciation of labor. If rich men's children were taught side by side with the children of poorer people how to work, there would be a more just regard for labor in general. Any training that will enable the young people to use the forces of nature is an advantage to the world."

Credit Where Credit Belongs.
To the Editor of the GRAPHIC:
While we all feel under obligation to the President for his action in re-appointing Mr. Morgan, our very efficient and painstaking postmaster, and also to the Senators of this Commonwealth who have declined to go against the wishes of the large majority of the Republicans of this vicinity, I cannot refrain at this time of our rejoicing to put upon record the deep obligations we all owe to the Hon. John W. Candler, our Representative who so willingly endorsed our petition and who has been at all times so jealous to act for our interests. Much more is to his credit, for after being defeated at our hands and falling before the cyclone of misrepresentation of the Tariff, high-taxed dinner pails and other false statements so common on the eve of election, his wounded spirit rose above all feelings of indifference and he has been the same loyal Representative as he always has been. No member of Congress from this Commonwealth ever was more willing to listen to the petitions and to carry out their just claims than
he. I have confidence that the people who always sooner or later made up the verdict in an impartial manner, will give him due credit. And those Republicans who would criticize the President for his slowness in making appointments must remember that he must necessarily hear all citizens, weigh the evidence they present and act in his best judgment.
This all takes time. If the Republican party put the watchword on their sign-board of forward and not backward stand for civil service reform, Protection to American Industries and sound money, they will elect the next President by a large majority, as the signs during the last week in the great northwest seem to indicate.

THE LAST OF THE HEARINGS BEFORE THE CITY COUNCIL.

The third and last hearing on the method of laying sewerage assessments was held Monday evening, before both branches of the city council; there was a smaller attendance than at the former hearings and evidently the subject is losing some of its interest.

The speakers at this meeting were Messrs. Samuel L. Powers, W. C. Bates, Marcus Morton, John W. Carter, Joel H. Hills, John T. Langford, Dr. Crehore and John B. Goodrich.

Mr. Powers opened the case for the prosecution and Mr. Goodrich close for the defense.

Mr. Powers began by overhauling some of the statements made by Mr. Mason at the last hearing, which he criticized pretty sharply. The real issue before us, however, said Mr. Powers, is whether the present ordinance, passed in haste and without due deliberation, shall stand or fall? I maintain that the ordinance of 1890 is neither equitable nor legal. In the first place, morally you have no right to assess the people as you propose; in the second place, you cannot legally collect a dollar of assessment under that plan against which the people protest. I assume that the ordinance exempts one-fifteenth of all frontage feet in Newton, and that exemption alone invalidates the statute. Again, the estimated cost of the sewers is $2.56 per running foot, and the amount which it is proposed to collect is $3.36 per running foot, amounting to over $800,000 more than is necessary to construct the sewers. That excess in the amount of the collections would also invalidate the ordinance.

At the last hearing, said Mr. Powers, my reputation as a lawyer was called in question, but I am not very sensitive on such things. Here in Newton one lawyer's opinion is as good as another, and to decide we have to canvass the lawyers to see how the majority stand. He would therefore present the opinion of a lawyer whose name would command confidence and respect, Mr. Moorfield Story. Points in regard to the old ordinance had been submitted to him, and he said that the exemption on frontage feet was not lawful, and that the city could not legally act under an ordinance in which the basis of assessments would enable the city to make a profit; therefore, the city could not collect more than the cost of the construction of the sewers. It was the opinion of Mr. Story that the ordinance passed by the city council of 1890 did not conform to the statutes. The city council should not act under an ordinance that examined the city in law suits, and if the ordinance stands, people will refuse to pay their assessments, and it will be resisted on principle. He doubted whether a tax could be collected if the people protested. He thought some just and fair and legal principle should be adopted, the old ordinance be repealed, and the whole matter referred to a new and impartial committee to decide upon some just, equitable and legal plan.

EX-COUNCILMAN W. C. BATES said he was one of the committee who drafted the ordinance and it was not hasty legislation. The committee had discussed the whole matter thoroughly and had sought the plan that would be best for the city, and the present ordinance, he contended, was founded on equity and common sense, and he had no doubt it would be approved by the mature judgment of the citizens. By it the city already pays one-fourth of the cost, or some $500,000, of the city assumed the cost of the drainage system. To make the city pay for the main branch sewer would make it pay one-half the cost of the sewers. He knew how many people who would oppose a plan which they did not originate, but the ordinance was directly in line with the public statutes. The mayor had already taken steps to have the assessments extended over a period of ten years, and the legislature were about to give such permission, which would remove the greater part of the hardship in the plan. In regard to the Langford plan, he had great respect for figures and the way in which they could be used, but as Mr. Langford only recommended that 35 per cent. of the cost be levied on the valuation, his plan had only 35 per cent. of virtue, according to his views. Mr. Bates showed what could be done with Mr. Langford's figures and with an elaborate array of percentages figured out that his 41-100ths would bring in only $29,545, instead of $420,000, which Mr. Langford claimed, and claimed that Mr. Langford's figures when carried out to their logical conclusion led to a reduction of $420,000. So far, he said, he had seen nothing to lead the city council to modify the present ordinance.

MR. JOHN W. CARTER was the next speaker and said there was no importance in Mr. Bates' figures, while Messrs. Story and Powers said that his plan was illegal, and that if taken into court no assessments could be collected. None of the petitioners would be benefited by a change, but they wanted a just and equitable plan. As far as he could discover it was men from the south side of the city who favored the old ordinance because it was more favorable to them, and the plan was a sectional one. Ex-Mayor Spear wrote a long letter dwelling on the hardships to his neighbor's horses, carriages and railroad stock, to assess them for sewerage. That was a very narrow view to take, and the same thing would bar out assessments for schools, streets or any other improvements. He then figured out the loss by reason of preventable sickness or death, to show what a financial advantage it would be to have good health. It was idle to say every one was not benefited by a gain to health. There was no reason why personal property should escape taxation. He hoped the present plan would be repealed and a new committee be appointed to secure a just and equitable plan.

MR. JOEL H. HILLS said he had been very favorably struck by the plan suggested by Dr. Crehore, and had hoped that some action would be taken in that direction as it seemed to him the best to all the citizens.

MR. MARCUS MORTON read letters from Mrs. Elizabeth A. Atkinson, Mrs. Seth Davis, and another lady, who owned large unproductive estates and who would be seriously embarrassed by the proposed plan of assessments. They did not need sewerage, and it seemed unjust to make them pay more than the Woodland Park Hotel, for instance, with its hundreds of guests, where sewerage was an absolute necessity.

It was notorious that personal property could and did escape taxation, and here in Newton there were two or three millions which were not taxed. To tax these widows for the benefit of such wealthy citizens was not just nor right.

MR. E. W. REDPATH said he did not expect any sewers on his street for years, but as it was for the benefit of public health they favored it and were willing to pay their fair proportion of the cost. He thought the Langford plan was infinitely more equitable than the one which had been adopted.

MR. J. T. LANGFORD said when ignorance of plans produced arguments it was better to leave them alone, they answered themselves. We do not ask whether our plan is legal or not, but is it equitable, and if so it can be made legal by legislation. He again claimed that the city engineer's estimates were much too large, and said they were so because the city engineer had figured on the basis of day labor instead of contract labor. It was claimed that the excess cost over Waltham was due to Newton's better system, subsoil drainage, rock in the streets, but if a system was good enough for Waltham it was not good enough for more sparsely settled Newton, particularly if $600,000 can be saved. The ordinance says the Newton system is to cost $2.56 a foot, but why is $3.36 assessed. The ordinance is contradictory. This excess of cost would bear very hard on Mr. Spear's horses and carriages and railroad stock, which ought to be spared all that was possible. He also thought 180 feet was too great a depth, when most other cities adopted 100 feet. The deep estates do not need the sewers and by such a great depth too much of the cost comes on farm and forest land. We have already been told that the ordinance is illegal; and a new one should be constructed in which excesses were guarded against.

MR. JOHN B. GOODRICH said he had taken but little interest until recently in the discussion, but there were certain things that ought to be said. We all see it is a very serious matter, and threats ought to be avoided and all sides given an impartial hearing. There should be no pride of opinion and no efforts to overstate the case or to scare any one. There was one thing which could not be winked out of sight. The legislature has not been trusted with the settlements, the law of the case was so plain that it should not be violated. He was surprised to hear it stated almost in the same breath that the plan was illegal because it did not contain a provision for double assessment and then that the other law can be made legal by the legislature. He did not think the courts would ever provide for double taxation. The law expressly says that you shall assess only on frontage and area, and to introduce valuation into it will make it illegal. It was the duty of the city government to frame an ordinance in accordance with the statutes, and they had examined the history of sewerage legislation and discussion, and had made the only ordinance they could have made under the statute, which called for a uniform and fixed rate based on frontage and area. Perhaps Mr. Langford's plan may be better than the one on the statute books, but it is too late to do anything of the kind. The legislature might admit a unanimous request from the citizens of Newton, but not one with a strong opposition to it, and he did not think the chances are that the legislature would grant such a request next year. They would say there are a dozen cities in the commonwealth, which find the statutes satisfactory, and why should Newton be made an exception? He did not like to see personal property let off but as the city would have to pay for the maintenance of the sewer, and also a share of the sewer, it would pay something. The policy of the law is to call land, and that is the principle on which the statute was made. The city solicitor was the adviser of the city and he will give you as good an opinion as can be got, you must take his advice. He thought more consideration should be given to the fact that this is the only ordinance the law allows, and if any of the details are wrong they can be amended. We can't settle here about the extravagance of the engineer's estimates, that must be left to the city council, but he did not think there was danger of their being found extravagant. We must consider what we have got to take and not what we would like. The legislature has clearly established the principle of taxation with regard to valuation, and that is what we must follow. He was almost prepared to say that if the case of the present ordinance was carried to the Supreme court it would say that any double taxation was not equitable and the ordinance was correct. He doubted whether there would be very much in that point. It would do us no good to raise any more money than is actually needed for the sewerage, but the contracts will soon be let and the amount needed can then be determined.

DR. CREHORE asked if the law would allow the city to build a sewer and charge an annual rental.

MR. GOODRICH said that the law limited the payments to three years. Mr. Hills' suggestion was an excellent one, but we pay collectively as well as individually. The main sewer is built by the state and the cost is assessed on the whole city, as it would benefit the public health. There was a question, however, as to how far the city would be warranted in going in that direction.

A Baby Saved.

Since birth my baby had running sores all over his head, and the doctors said that he must die, for they could not heal them. I used everything I ever heard of, but it was no good. He got so bad that he would not nurse. My husband's sister told me to try Sulphur Bitters as she had great faith in them. I used a bottle and the sores commenced to heal. After using two bottles more the sores were all healed and I considered my baby saved.—Mother, Concord, N. H.

THE CITY GOVERNMENT.

THE CITY SOLICITOR DECLARES THE LANGFORD PLAN ILLEGAL.

Both branches of the city government met Monday evening, the Common Council transacting concurrent business. In the board of aldermen, all the members were present and Mayor Hibbard presided.

Mayor Hibbard read a lengthy communication from the City Solicitor, in response to various questions on sewerage assessments. He said that there was no legal objection to the city's assuming any portion of the cost for the main drains; that the tax must be laid on all persons benefited by the sewer, whether their land was built upon or not; and that the value of buildings could not be included in the assessed valuation for sewerage. He said the statute allowed three ways of assessments: One under Section 4, of Chapter 50, on the value of the land; another under Section 7, on the quantity of land. The Langford plan seemed to unite both of these, for which there was no authority and it could not be done without securing some permission from the legislature, and an ordinance embodying the Langford plan would not be valid. It would be legal to charge an entrance fee of $25 for connection with the sewer. The report was received and filed.

The first corps of cadets asked permission to use the rifle pit of Co. C, for rifle practice; referred to committee on military affairs.

Robert B. Hill was appointed undertaker. Richard George and Peter Plants were appointed special police at Hickey's paper mill.

ADAMS K. TOLMAN

was appointed a member of the Newton Water Board, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Hon. Levi C. Wade.

The Newton Street railway sent in a communication, stating that they would ask soon for a rescission of the order for moving the tracks on River street to the center of the street, and a hearing, and would then explain their delay. The absence of the executive officers from the city had prevented such action earlier this year.

There being some legal objection the appointment of street railway men as special Railroad policemen was revoked and they were then appointed special police for duty on the premises and cars of the Newton Street railway company. The certificate of the incorporation of the Newton Y. M. C. A. was filed.

The quarterly report of the chief of the fire department was received and filed. Robert W. Blue was appointed and confirmed as a police officer of the city.

Notice of applications for sixth class liquor licenses was granted an honorable discharge from No. 2 hose, and the resignation of O. J. Cooney as driver of No. 6 hose was accepted.

Chas. H. Taintor was appointed an auctioneer. Alderman Luke presented the petition of Julia A. Flynn, claiming damages for the raising of the grade of the sidewalk in front of her property on Washington street, causing the water to flow over her land, and flood the cellar of her house; referred to claim committee.

The petitions for sidewalks on Gibbs and Laurel streets were referred to the highway committee.

Y. H. Fiske was granted a license for repairs on building on Brook street and the putting in of two forges.

Petitions for concrete walk on Hartford street were referred to highway committee.

W. B. Locke asked compensation for damages by flooding of his premises on Beacon street by surface water from the street; referred to claims committee.

Higerty Bros. were granted license to repair building on Washington streets Lower Falls, to be used for tenement, and stores.

B. C. Baker was granted license to build wood shed on the land of the city at Auburndale. Also granted a hearing on application for license for 8 horse power steam boiler and engine, for Tuesday evening, March 21st, at 7.45 o'clock.

John Flood asked for license to build a barn 25 by 30, on Washington street, Ward 1, to be used for undertaking room and stable; referred to license committee.

Sidewalks were asked for by W. E. Elder on Winthrop street; L. J. O. Toole on Washington street, and C. T. Pulsifer on Clyde street, and O. D. Homer for repairs on Highland street.

Sidewalks were also asked for on Winchester street from Centre to Columbia streets.

Junk licenses were granted to P. A. Holland, Patrick Lang, and James Murphy.

Notifications of intentions to build were received from Heinrich Zitow Adams avenue; B. H. Dumaresq, Bowers street, Ward 2; and William Welsh, Auburndale avenue.

Alderman Hyde presented an order for the amendment of the ordinance to allow of the appointment of two sergeants of police; referred to ordinance committee.

Alderman Hyde presented an order that the chairman of the finance committee be authorized to advertise for proposals for insuring the public buildings of Newton.

Alderman Luke objected as the finance committee were to consult with the Boston Insurance Exchange on Friday. After some discussion, Alderman Hyde withdrew his order.

The annual report of the Board of Health was received and filed. On motion of Alderman Harbach an order was passed appropriating $2,788 for the laying of water mains; $175 for 100 feet of 6 in. main on Cushing street; $213 for 200 feet 6 in. on Adams avenue; $874 for 964 feet 6 in. on Orchard and Ashley streets; $403 for 212 feet 12 inches on Mill street; $517 for 445 feet 6 inch on Burke street; and $427 for 400 feet 6 in. on Waban avenue.

On motion of Alderman Luke an order was passed authorizing the City Treasurer to sell $50,000 water bonds of the city, to run till 1920 and bear 4 per cent interest, the money to be used for water construction.

The hearing was then opened on the turnouts of the Newton street railway, and President Morse spoke briefly. There were no remonstrants and the hearing was closed. The board then adjourned to the upper hall for the sewerage hearing.

After reassembling, $356.61 was appropriated to pay for furniture for the new police and police signal station.

$250 was appropriated for the exchange of one of the fire department horses. $1,000 was appropriated and charged to miscellaneous department, for the purchase of two transit instruments, levels, and other instruments for the city engineer's office.

An order was passed granting leave for the street railway company to put in turnouts, 300 feet between Beach and Harvard streets, 100 feet near Greenwood avenue and 300 feet on River and Lexington streets.

A petition was presented from the street railway company for permission to erect poles on Waltham and Crafts streets, to furnish additional power for the street railway, and a hearing was granted for Tuesday evening, March 21st, at 8 o'clock.

Alderman Hyde moved that the city clerk be instructed to enforce the ordinance in regard to licenses for drivers of hacks and cabs; passed.

The board then adjourned to Monday evening, April 13th.

The Granite State Building ASSOCIATION.

OBJECT.

THE object of this association is to furnish homes to its members on an instalment plan at the very lowest cost. According to the lapses on old line insurance and one to five year orders for the past five years, fifty per cent. of all have lapsed. We find by careful investigation, a homestead costing Three Thousand Dollars can be obtained at a cost of about Eighteen Hundred Dollars to all members of this association. Our plan is this: All members pay five Dollars to join this association and as soon as this fund reaches the amount of Three Thousand Dollars, certificate holder No. 1 can buy or build a house, select his own location, and make his own contract for building, plans and specifications to be approved by the association. The members shall first give a mortgage for Three Thousand Dollars without interest, less the amount paid in by said member, and shall continue to pay his weekly instalment until his mortgage is paid up in full.

SOURCES OF PROFIT.

THE lapse element. It is impossible to hold any considerable number of persons together in any kind of an association without change; old members drop out and new ones come in, change in condition, alteration of mind, death, etc., all contribute to exemplify this principle, and constitute an inevitable law by which the persistent members realize a large profit. All members stand equal, as each one has to pay in full for his homestead, less the lapses, which, according to past five years' experience, place the lapses at fifty per cent. This will reduce the cost of each member's Three Thousand Dollar house to Eighteen Hundred Dollars, or less. Ninety per cent. of all instalments go to the building fund, ten per cent. to the general fund to pay the expenses of the association.

NEWTON TARIFF REFORM CLUB. The Tariff is a Tax.

Every person interested in the subject of the Tariff is cordially invited to take part in the discussion carried on in this column. Respectful consideration will be given to inquiries, criticisms, and communications of every kind, whether coming from Tariff Reformers, Free Traders or High Protectionists. Address Secretary of the Tariff Reform Club, Newton Centre, Mass.

The Sugar Tax.

So it appears that the tariff on sugar was a tax. But of every dollar taken out of the people by the sugar tax ninety cents went into the Treasury. In the case of many other taxes the Treasury gets but a small fraction, the great bulk of the money paid by the people going to swell the profits of favored manufacturers. In the case of the tax on wool the Treasury gets the money, but the domestic producer is not benefited. On the contrary, the high price of foreign wools needed to mix with the domestic, handicaps manufacturers and so decreases the demand for domestic wools. Many taxes are prohibitory so that they yield nothing to the Treasury, but the people are obliged to pay in the enhanced cost of domestic productions.

Why We Are Prosperous.

If we are more prosperous than other nations, it is mainly because we have free trade over a larger area than any other nation in the world. This free trade between all our States and Territories results to the advantage of all, and not of some at the expense of others. According to Mr. McKinley trade is impossible unless one of the two traders get cheated. He objects to foreign commerce because if it is good for the foreign nations it must be bad for us, and yet he acknowledges that Illinois and New York may trade freely to the advantage of both.

Reasons for a Reduction of the Tariff.

Our reason why we should have a reduced tariff is that, mainly owing to the McKinley law, the people are fast finding out that the tariff is a tax; that it is paid by the consumer; that where the American manufacturer uses the tariff which Mr. McKinley made for his benefit, the American consumer pays the tariff tax just the same, even if it goes to an American manufacturer instead of to the Government; that according to the New York Tribune American manufacturers have benefited by some slight reductions on raw materials, permitted by Mr. McKinley; that according to a number of American manufacturers they have been seriously injured by the increases of duty on raw material secured by Mr. McKinley for the benefit of some one who had a "pull"; that the manufacturers, for whom Mr. McKinley's tariff does the most, have taken the lead in making reductions of wages; and finally, the tariff ought to be reduced because unnecessary taxation is unjust taxation, and taxation of the whole people for the benefit of a small class of the people is a gross abuse of the powers of the Government.

Who Gets the Benefit?

The McKinley tariff increased the duty on plate glass for the benefit of the manufacturers. Now, according to the American Manufacturer and Iron World, of Pittsburgh, the plate glass manufacturers have called the attention of the Treasury Department to the fact that they are about to open 300 new works or pots, and that there are not enough skilled laborers in the country to operate them. This is for the purpose of getting permission to import a lot of cheap foreign labor under a permissive clause of the contract labor law. Thus the capitalist is to get all the benefits of the McKinley law and the American laborer none. As to the profits of the plate glass business, the following is taken from one of the publications of the Reform Club:

The Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company own three works at Creighton, Tarentum and Ford City, Pa. Eight years ago this company built its first plant at Creighton; five years later it erected its second plant at Tarentum. In 1889 J. B. Ford, one of the heaviest stockholders of the company, erected a plant at Ford City and sold it to the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company for $1,500,000, one-half of which was to be in bonds and the other half in stock of the company at its par value. Trouble arose at once among the other stockholders, who objected to the payment of $750,000 in stock at its par value only, since the stock was 100 per cent. above par in the open market. The case is now in the courts.

The Effect on Prices.

Of all the raw materials used in the manufacture of glass and glassware, the ones which are imported at all and are subject to duty are soda ash, salt cake, lead and clay. But only one of these is used in such large quantities as to make a large increase in the cost of production—lead. This material is controlled by the Lead Trust, which charges the glass manufacturer all that the tariff will warrant. At the same time it is of lead and lime glassware that nearly all of our exports consist. Were lead upon the free list, our export trade in glassware would rapidly increase.

The cost of fuel in the manufacture of glass and glassware is much cheaper here than abroad. The higher cost to foreign manufacturers more than offsets any advantage which they may have over manufacturers here in the other materials used. So that practically there is no need of a high tariff upon glass on this account.

Our manufacturers of window glass have united to keep up the prices of their product to the importing point, thus squeezing out of consumers all that the tariff will allow. They restrict production, thus throwing laborers out of employment, and manufacture only what they can sell at high prices, thus preferring to make large profits upon limited production. And finally, they are forming a trust which shall give them more power, not only over consumers of window glass, but also over their workmen. By uniting with a small class of their workmen they restrict apprenticeship, preferring to import foreign laborers to the giving of employment to workmen here. No industry in our whole country represents better than this the effect of a high tariff in the creation of a monopoly, not alone of capital, but also of labor.

In plate glass the manufacturers have formed a combination, which enables them to exact from consumers all that the tariff permits. Protected as this industry is by a duty of over 100 per cent., it pays its workmen less than does any other industry in the whole country requiring skilled labor. At the same time that they keep their prices up to the importing point, they have secured the retention of an enormous duty upon cylinder glass mirrors used very extensively by the manufacturers of furniture, and which is not made in this country at all, their aim being to compel the furniture manufacturers to use their own more expensive product.

In flint and lime glassware geographical protection is very large. And yet the duties have been largely increased in spite of the fact that the old rates were nearly prohibitory. Only one result is possible, and that was the one aimed at by the increase in duties. The manufacturers of tableware are forming a trust to restrict production and raise prices. Already making enormous profits, they are not content, but demand that the Government shall put it in their power to make consumers pay more.

Does a high tariff make high wages? Compare the wages of the plate glass workers with those of blacksmiths, carpenters and other skilled workmen, who cannot possibly be protected by the tariff. Even in window glass, wages are no better here than abroad, especially when we consider that abroad laborers work the whole year and here only about 30 weeks.

Does a high tariff make possible the formation of trusts and combinations? Look at the Window Glass Trust, the Plate Glass Trust, the projected trust of the manufacturers of tableware and the "understanding" of the manufacturers of glassware.

BIG SCORES FOR CASINOS.

The Casinos and Chelseas met on the Woodland Park Hotel alleys at Auburndale Saturday evening and played a game in the inter-club bowling tournament. The Casinos bowled in great form, making the largest score of any club on the Woodland Park alleys this season.

The score of the Casinos was remarkable for its big strings and totals. Davis made 221 in the first string, which is next to the highest 10-frame score made this season.

Johnson knocked down 187 pins in the first string, 214 in the second, and his total figured 557, the best record so far on a neutral alley.

The Casinos gained a lead of 207 pins the first string, which they increased to 208 pins in the second and 402 in the third string. The lowest total made by the Casinos was 435, which was 10 pins above the best total made by the Chelseas.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

Handsome and valuable silk umbrellas have been selected for individual prizes in the Newton Club bowling tournament. The team prizes have not yet been selected.

Mr. Joseph Lee, proprietor of the Woodland Park Hotel, Auburndale, is arranging for a series of bowling matches on the hotel alleys, following the inter-league tournament open to the same clubs. Valuable first and second prizes will be offered for the winner.

The Newton and Boston Athletic Association teams are now tied for first place in the Amateur Interclub series. Each team has three more games to play, the Athletics having a slight advantage, as their games are with the weaker clubs. The Newtons play their remaining games with the Woodland Parks, Arlingtons and Casinos. The Athletics finish with the Chelseas, Woodland Parks and Arlingtons.

The Newton Club bowling tournament is nearing the finish, and several of the teams are pretty well bunched so far as first place is concerned. The best individual two-string averages so far have been made by Hamilton, 328; Shirley, 327; Tapley, 321; Richards, 318; Savage, 316; Dole, 315; Follett, 312; Cook, 308; Kinsley, 305; Bridgman, 303. The award of prizes will be based on the averages, and Hamilton is now leading for the individual trophy.

TEAM THREE WINS.

Team 3 defeated team 8 in the Newton Club bowling tournament, in a game played last Friday evening, which was remarkable for a big falling off in the individual work if nothing else. The one redeeming feature was the fine play of Payne who knocked down 187 pins in the second string. Capt. Dole's men won by 60 pins.

FOR THE CLOCK.

The first half of a 10-string match for the Newton club challenge bowling trophy—a handsome hall clock—was rolled on the club alleys Tuesday evening between Capt. W. J. Follett and Mr. A. A. Savage of the Newton inter-club team. The clock was won by Capt. Follett several months ago, and will become his property if he succeeds in vanquishing all contestants until June next.

Since winning the clock for the first time, Capt. Follett has rolled 10-string matches with Messrs. C. F. Shirley and J. L. Richards, both of whom were defeated, the former by a very close margin.

The contest drew the usually large attendance of ladies and gentlemen. The features were the remarkable evenness of the scores throughout. Savage started off in the first string with a lead of nine pins, but at the close of the fourth string Follett led by three pins. In the fifth Savage forged ahead in earnest, notwithstanding the fine bowling of his skillful opponent, and won this first half of the match by 22 pins, also making the best 10-frame score. The summary:

ATHLETICS WIN.

The Arlington and Boston Athletic teams rolled a match Tuesday evening upon the Chelsea alleys. The Athletic association won by the total of 2218, against the 2005 of the Arlingtons.

FORTUNATE FATHER AND SON.

The public hearings on the methods of laying sewerage assessments have been closed, and it is safe to assume that all parties to the controversy are satisfied with their number and length. Every one who wished has had a chance to speak, and the city council have acquired a good deal of valuable information in regard to the law in regard to sewerage. The lawyers of the city have shown their patriotism by being represented at each hearing, and even the opinion of Moorfield Story has been invoked, so that the city fathers now know the last word that can be said on the legal side of the case.

At Monday's hearing Mr. Powers said that the majority of the lawyers determine the law, so that on one side we have Mr. Powers, and on the other Messrs. Ivy, Harry Mason and Goodrich, which would seem from Mr. Powers' point of view to determine the case in favor of the old ordinance. Mr. Goodrich made a very clear and forcible speech at Monday's hearing, cleared the air of the more or less fine spun theories that have been broached and showed clearly what is legal and what is not legal. He doubted whether any relief could be got from the legislature, and Mr. Goodrich is quite an authority on legislatures, and said the question is not what we would like but what the law allows.

It has been decided that it is not advisable to put the whole cost of the sewer into the tax-levy, but to raise the cost by assessments. The law is very plain that the assessment must be fixed and uniform, based on frontage and area, and that the element of values can not enter into it. We may not like the law, but there it is, and we must act in accordance with it. Mr. Langford's plan, which the city solicitor had on the same evening pronounced to be illegal, clearly cannot be thought of, unless under the rather doubtful hope of securing special legislation from the legislature, to which there would be a strong opposition.

There only remains the much discus-sioned ordinance already adopted, of whose legality there is no doubt save in the point of assessments on corner lots, and the provision that the land taxed on one street cannot be taxed on the other, is the one which Mr. Moorfield Story thinks is contrary to the statutes. There are many corner lots in Newton, and if the owners desire this could be changed so that the land could be doubly taxed.
This would certainly be unequitable and might make corner lots unpopular until after the sewers are built.

It would be an easy matter to amend the ordinance, however. In regard to the claim that the estimates are too large, that can soon be settled, as a large share of the contracts will be awarded before any assessments can be levied, and if the estimates are found to be too large they can then be reduced.

The hearings have brought out very plainly the legal limits of the case, and so have served a very useful purpose.
The ordinance did seem unjust and inequitable and liable to cause hardship, but so would any sewer ordinance that could be constructed. But if the law only allows such a method of assessment, there does not seem to be much hope of relief. If the assessments are spread over a period of ten years, permission to do which has been granted by the legislature, the hardship will be greatly lessened.

BETTER STATE ROADS.

The bill of Hon. E. P. Carpenter in regard to state roads is one that ought to pass, as it would be of great benefit to the whole state. Good roads are a test of civilization, it is said, and although Massachusetts roads are not the worst in the world, they might be vastly improved without an increase in the total amount expended on them. Road repairs and construction are a large item in the annual budget of every city and town, and just now there is a good deal of dissatisfaction with old methods and a seeking after better ones. This is the case not only in Newton but in other cities, and formed a prominent feature of the annual messages of many Massachusetts cities. The effects of the improvements made this year in Newton will be seen by the end of the year, but a large city is fortunately placed, as it can afford to introduce methods and machinery of which the poorer towns of the state can not avail themselves.

Mr. Carpenter has drawn up his bill on this theory, believing that each town through deficient construction and want of appliances spends annually twice the amount on poor roads that it would cost the state to build perfect roads. Farming towns, sparsely populated, feel the road burden as a great tax, but under the proposed law, there would be at least one state road from town to town, macadamized, and paid for out of the general fund, and after it was once well built the annual cost of keeping in repair would be but trifling.

Mr. Carpenter figures that now $3,500, 000 are paid for road repairs, and that half the cost, if directed by state supervision, with the economy that comes from wholesale methods, would give far better results. He proposes a very ingenious method of establishing a sinking fund, to liquidate the first cost of building, and the scheme is favored by many prominent citizens, Col. Albert A. Pope having appeared before the committee and made a strong speech in its favor.
The scheme seems to have strong arguments in its favor, and with the great increase in bicycle riding, a large propo-tion of the voters are interested in good roads, while the towns themselves would be benefited by having a highway which would be at all times passable. It is to be hoped that the bill will become a law.

THE REPUBLICAN CLUB.

The dinner of the new Republican Club was a great success, both in regard to the attendance and the speeches. The address of the president, Roger Wolcott, was vigorous and inspiring, and was marked by an independence which has become unusual in such speakers. His outspoken condemnation of Quay and Dudley rather surprised the old politicians. He upheld "that robust and virile independence in politics which upholds country and honor above party" and which used "party as a weapon but never as a yoke." He avowed his belief in more advanced steps in the freeing of raw materials, and that duties should be so adjusted as not to restrict trade to a home market alone or to abolish barter with other nations. Evidently Mr. Wolcott believes in the right of every man to his own opinions, and it is such men as he who are needed to regain Republican ascendency in this state, and to put new life into his party. We have had enough of men who were mere politicians, and who had no opinions but what a party caucus allowed, and a change is urgently needed.

Secretary Tracy's speech was the most important event of the evening, as in it he disclosed his purpose to put the navy department on a civil service reform basis, and to free it from the scandals that have so long interfered with the usefulness of every navy yard. Of course he would not have spoken as he did had not been certain of the support of the President, and Mr. Tracy's administration of the department will certainly be a notable one if he succeeds in his plans. It is to be regretted that the President can not be persuaded to introduce the reform into the post office department and take that out of politics, but to do so he would have to remove his Postmaster General.

The great feature of the meeting is said to have been the enthusiastic applause with which every mention of Secretary Blaine and reciprocity was received, and there was no doubt left in the minds of those present as to whom the club and its guests consider the strong man of the present administration. If the limited reciprocity with South American countries is so popular how much more enthusiasm would have been felt if Mr. Blaine had been able to carry out his plans with regard to Canadian reciprocity.

MR. MORGAN RE-APPOINTED.

Postmaster Morgan was re-appointed on Thursday, after a long and rather humiliating struggle. The combined Republicans of Newton petitioned for his re-appointment, Congressman Candler and Senators Hoar and Dawes endorsed the petition. There was no opposition to speak of, and repeated efforts from Washington had failed to induce any prominent Republican to be considered as a candidate. Newton people believe in civil service reform both before and after election.

Within ten days it is stated that Mr.
Wanamaker wrote to both Senators Hoar and Dawes, telling them they must name some Republican for the Newton office.
The Senators wisely declined to interfere with the endorsement of Congressman Candler, and the Republican committee of Newton.

This came to the notice of Mr. C. Bowditch Coffin, and on Monday he wrote to Mr. Wanamaker, as a member of the State Central Committee, and also as chairman for the past five years of the Republican city committee of Newton, putting the case very strongly, and showing the deplorable effect upon the party in Newton if Mr. Morgan was not re-appointed. Mr. Wanamaker evidently received the letter and concluded that discretion was the better part of valor.
Mr. R. H. Gardner, the present chairman of the city committee, also wrote to Mr. Wanamaker, urging him to settle the case by re-appointing Mr. Morgan. Other prominent men wrote letters, or sent friends who were acquainted with the postmaster general, to urge upon him that the case was becoming a state matter and great harm would result if reform principles were violated. The case had hung over so long that popular attention was attracted to it and it was too late to refuse to make the re-appointment.

The Republicans of Newton can congratulate themselves on the solidity of their position in this affair. They stood up for their principles, and in spite of repeated efforts from Washington no prominent Republican could be found who would be false to reform principles and be considered a candidate for the office. In other cities this has not been the case, and so the outcome has been different, efficiency in office has not proved an obstacle to removal, when a postmaster was of the wrong party.

Too much credit can not be given to Congressman Candler for his manly and pronounced action. He resisted all the pressure brought to bear upon him by Washington influences and remained true to the wishes of Newton people.
It was his determined stand that finally brought success, and the two Senators stood by him. Massachusetts has won against Pennsylvania ideas for once.

The new member of the water board,
Mr. Adams K. Tolman, of West Newton, will be a great acquisition to that body,
and will aid to keep up the high reputation of that body as a strictly business board. When in the board of aldermen Mr. Tolman was noted for his business like methods and the conscientious service he rendered to the city. That he had been prevailed upon to again enter official life will be welcome news to those citizens who were so disappointed when he refused further service in the board of aldermen, and Mayor Hibbard is to be congratulated on securing so excellent an official. Mr. Tolman's appointment will strengthen the board in the confidence of the people.

The Legislature has passed the bill to allow of sewerage assessments being extended over a period of ten years. Those who wish can avail themselves of this privilege, by making application to the proper authorities. This will take away one of the hardships connected with the assessments, as many could pay without trouble an assessment divided into ten yearly parts, who would find it difficult to pay the whole sum at once.

The Cottage Hospital troubles seem now to be at an end, and perhaps the controversy about its management will have good results in the future. One thing is gratifying that, in the discussion, the work of the Hospital was most fully endorsed by every one. No one had any complaint to make about that,
so that the institution itself is seen to be worthy of fullest confidence.

NEWTON has 70 members in the New Republican Club, coming next to Boston, with Lowell third.

The floral decorations at the wedding reception of Dr. and Mrs. Hunt at the Club House, Wednesday evening, were very much admired. They were arranged by Mr. H. A. Mansfield, the florist, and consisted of the floral parol under which the wedding party stood; one mantel was banked with Mareschal Niel roses, and the other with tulips, making beautiful pictures. The mirror was draped with roses and smilax. The hall had a floral horseshoe over one door, and a globe of pink and one of white pinks. The arch was draped with green surmounted with a floral bow and arrow. The stairs were draped with green caught up with bunches of Mermes roses tied with pink ribbon.
Potted palms, roses and lilies were grouped in many of the house. Mr. Mansfield received many compliments for his taste and skill.

New Toilet Aquarium.

This is the name of a new household necessity which Abram French & Co. are offering to their patrons. It deserves to be seen by all who wish toilet water of any kind, and the firm invite the housekeepers of Newton to call and see the many advantages which it has over the old-fashioned heavy ever. See illustration on another page.

—The body of George Hobbs, the 16-year-old son of George C. Hobbs of Minot place, who was drowned in the Charles river, near the Silver Lake woolen mills, on Wednesday of last week, was recovered Saturday afternoon by a diver, very near the place where the boy went down.

—An alarm from box 23 was rung in Monday for a fire on the Trotter estate, Washington park. It started from a bon fire and while the man who kindled it was taking a nap, the surrounding fences caught. The flames were practically extinguished by the inmates of the house before the arrival of the fire apparatus.

—J. H. Irwin left his horse, with weight attached, in front of Mrs. Williams' store yesterday afternoon. The 3.20 express frightened the animal and he ran, turning the corner at Cogswell's market and colliding with Tupper's grain wagon. The driver of the latter was thrown off, but escaped injury. Irwin's horse leaped and ran into Harrington's stable and the only damage was a broken harness.

—In the match for the clock, Tuesday evening, between Capt. Follett and Mr. A. A. Savage, the latter excelled in his work with the second ball, only missing two chances in 5 strings. He took kindly to single pins and difficult combines and altogether gave a very fine exhibition of bowling. Capt. Follett's first ball was very effective but his second ball proved less accurate than that of his opponent.

—The body of George S. Hobbs, who was drowned in Charles river, on Wednesday afternoon, April 1st, was recovered late in the afternoon of Saturday, April 4. It was found a few hundred feet from the spot where the boat capsized, by the diver, Capt.

John Olsen. The body was viewed by Medical Examiner Mead and taken in charge by Undertaker Gregg. The funeral services, held at the house of his parents on Monday afternoon, were conducted in a most sympathetic and touching manner by Mr. W. H. White, to whose Sunday school George had recently belonged. The floral tributes were unusually profuse and beautiful. After the services the remains were taken to No. Hampton, N. H., for interment.

—A pleasant company gathered in Tremont Hall last Friday evening in response to invitations received from Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Q. Cole, and passed an agreeable evening with dancing, good music being furnished by Miss Ella R. Park, and the never-to-be-forgotten material attraction which are a substantial feature of the social occasion. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Estes, Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Bridge, Mr. and Mrs. Henry N. Baker, Miss Mabel Hawley, Miss Baker, Miss Chamberlain, Misses Allen, Miss Walker, Miss Shaw, Miss Bird, Miss Blanche Pierce, Mr. William R. Chaffee, Mr. George W. Lindstrom, Mr. John Tuckman, Mr. John Baker, Jr., Mr. Louis A. Hall, Mr. Joshua Baker, Jr., and Mr. Frank P. Chamberlain.

—Sunday was the last day of the Rev. Geo. S. Butters as pastor of the Methodist church. In the evening a large congregation listened to his farewell address, "A Retrospect and Prospect." He has been at Newtonville for four years, during which time he has not only greatly endeared himself to those of his own congregation, but his broad and kindly spirit has made itself felt throughout the community in a way to cause universal regret at his departure. His new field of labor will not be definitely decided until the close of the conference now being held at Lynn, but he will doubtless be assigned to either Fitchburg or Springfield. The church will be closed next Sunday for all services. The following one, April 19, will be the first for the new pastor, though who he will be is not yet known.

—Chas. Ward Post 62 G. A. R. held a public service Monday evening in the Universalist church, in common with posts of the Grand Army all over the country, in commemoration of the ninety-fifth anniversary of the formation of the Order. There was a good attendance. After the invocation by Rev. Geo. S. Butters a special responsive service followed by prayer by Rev. H. J. Patrick, a brief history of the post was given by comrade A. T. Sylvester. At precisely 8.30 the order and accompanying letter of Commander in Chief Veazey was read by Comrade Geo. M. Fiske. Rev. E. A. White then gave an excellent address, briefly reviewing the history of the order, commending its principles and work, and making two or three suggestions as to the future. The singing of America concluded the service.

—A very enjoyable entertainment was given by Mr. Ida Council, No. 127, R. A., at their council rooms last evening, after the regular business meeting. The entertainment consisting of music and reading, was for the members and ladies, and was given by the members' ladies, Mrs. J. B. Cornish, Mrs. S. W. French and Mr. C. Frank Hunting. Mrs. Cornish's "Aunt and High Art" was exceedingly amusing and finely given, and the "Foot Blacks" in response to a request showed a wonderful command of the tongue. The duet "A Night in Venice" by Mrs. French and Mr. Hunting was a beautiful piece, beautifully rendered, and continued applause called forth "Little Bird why singest thou," a solo by Mrs. French, and "Love's Old Sweet Song," by Mr. Hunting. The other numbers, "Love me if I live" by Mrs. French, "Golden Love" by Mr. Hunting, and the reading of "Love in a Balloon" by Mrs. Cornish were all thoroughly enjoyed and highly appreciated.

—Mr. George W. Morse was the guest of the Middlesex Club at Young's Hotel last Saturday. In speaking of the New Orleans affair, he said: "I doubt if there were 50 men among all that mob who had read any of the evidence in the trial, or 10 men who had read it all. After the lynching I read it all, and there was not evidence enough of the guilt of the men on trial so that many of us would not have hesitated about bringing in a verdict of 'not guilty' if we had been on the jury. There was no substantial thing that pointed to the bringing of the jury. There were 2000 people in that mob, and probably 3000 of them were spectators, and I think a large part of them were opposed to killing the Italians, but they had no leader. Twenty men with rifles and a good leader could have stopped the mob and prevented these murders. I must give the ring-leaders credit for having good command of the crowd. They didn't want blood simply, but they were actuated by a sense of justice and public necessity. The better classes, not the ruling classes, of the city do not uphold the deed." Mr. Morse was in New Orleans at the time of the lynching.

—Capt. B. C. Baker is having a large shed built near his coal office which will be fitted up with a ten horse power steam engine, saw, and a splitter for sawing and splitting cord wood by steam. This will be a great acquisition to his business and will be appreciated by the public of Auburndale.

—Mr. Dwight L. Moody is to speak at the Congregational church on Thursday and Friday evenings of next week, April 16 and 17. A large attendance is expected although it is unfortunate that one of the dates should be identical with that of the Newton Boat Club minstrels in which so many Auburndale people are interested.

—The sudden departure from this place of Mr. Charles E. Seamon, a provision dealer, caused much anxiety to his family. It is rumored that he has gone to England.

A tract of 180,000 square feet, adjoining the Wilbur estate and forming part of the old Pulsifer estate, has been purchased by Joseph Fellman and others for $45,000, at the rate of twenty-five cents a foot. This territory is to be brought into the market at once, and already plans have been made for the erection of ten residences.

—Last Friday evening about thirty young people enjoyed a social time at the home of Miss Fyfe. During the early hours of the evening Progressive Stop was played. The prizes were won by the following contestants: 1st, gentlemen's, Mr. Vose; progressive, Mr. Morton; booty, Mr. Spaulding. The young lady winners were 1st, Miss Cheney; booty, Miss Bassett. After the cards were laid aside a very dainty collation was served. The rooms were tastefully decorated with noted plants. Among those present were Misses Bassett, Cheney, Kimberley, Newhall, Chance, Stark, Foster, Howard, Soule, Ames and Wellington. Some of the gentlemen present were Messrs. Broderson, Vose, Burrage, Huxley, Bacon, Kimberley, Felton, Greene and Pratt. The party broke up at a late hour.

—At a meeting of colored citizens of Newton, in Progressive hall, the following delegates were chosen to attend the Mass. Citizens Equal Rights convention in Boston, Monday, April 13:—Lynan Hicks, Lewis S. Slater, J. Henry Meekins, Paul D. Holmes, Geo. H. Wright, Wm. H. McIntire, alternates, John Chant, H. Lomax, J. R. Smith, Chas. Moore. A permanent organization was effected, to be known as the Colored National League of Newton, with the following officers:—Pres., Lynan Hicks; vice-pres., Wm. H. McIntire; Sec., Paul D. Holmes; treas., John Chant; executive committee, Lynan Hicks, chair; S. S. Slater, Geo. H. Wright, Wm. H. McIntire, Paul D. Holmes, J. Henry Meekins, J. Lomax, Ed. Schumaker, Edward J. Smith, Geo. Phillips, Eugene A. Lomax, Charles Moore.

—The Nuclei Club met at the house of Mrs. Richard Rowe on Friday afternoon. Mrs. Emily Pinkham of Lynn, read an intensely interesting paper on the "Passion Play," after the paper she was presented with a beautiful bouquet of roses tied with a white satin ribbon, with "Mitzpah," the motto of the club exquisitely painted in forget-me-nots in one corner of the ribbon, and Mrs. E. Pinkham, from a Nuclei Club in the opposite end, the club hope to have Mrs. Pinkham again at some future date to give a larger number an opportunity to hear her remarkable rendition. So graphic was her description of the changes in the scene, there were but few dry eyes among her hearers. The rain kept many away, but there were several distinguished guests present, and the fortunate few will never lose the impression made by the reader.

—The changes in the police headquarters have brought some changes in the police signal system. The automatic "answer back" device used to show the patrolman pulling in from a box that his call had been received has been abandoned as an unnecessary feature. There are those, however, who believe that it is an important adjunct to the system, but as a matter of fact there can be little or no doubt that the call has been received if the circuit is working. Some persons claim that it was taken out to avoid litigation relative to patent rights. So far as calling an officer or to make it plainer to acquaint him that the central office desires to communicate with him, it makes no difference. A system of switches are so arranged that a bell can be rung in the signal box which notifies the officer that he is to use his telephone and talk with the central office. The system, generally speaking, is working very satisfactorily at present.

—The home of Miss Felix was the meeting place a few days ago of the "U. K. C." a club composed of members of the class of '93, Newton High school. The occasion was spent in a social manner. The principal feature was card playing in which Miss Edith Rogers and Miss Bessie Colley obtained the first prizes and Mr. Wakefield and Miss Nickerson the second prizes. During the evening a dainty collation was served. This club is one of the most active of any in the High school.

Riverdale Lodge, N. E. O. P., held their regular meeting in Auburn Hall, Monday evening, and in addition to the routine exercises of the evening an interesting program had been arranged for the enjoyment of the members in the shape of a contest between the ladies and gentlemen. The gentlemen engaged in sewing buttons on to pieces of cloth, the winner being the gentleman who sewed on the most buttons in a given time, and the ladies had a mulling match. Messrs. J. H. Dooliver and W. B. Atherton were tied for first place in the button sewing, and for the ladies Miss Nellie Soule won, driving 28 nails in three minutes, and Mrs. Hunter was second.

—Mr. David Bucklin Fitts of Auburn street died Saturday at 2 p. m. He was born in Seekonk, now called East Providence, in 1807. He subsequently resided in Hyde Park, then for a brief period at Holliston, then at Waterbury, Conn., and has spent the last years of his life at Auburndale. A widow and four children survive him. Prayers were held at the house Wednesday and the body was taken to Holliston for interment.

Pure Grit at Wounded Knee.

The Indians fought desperately until they were annihilated, but their bravery was no more conspicuous than that which was unostentatiously displayed by some of the soldiers. Perhaps the most remarkable case was that of Private Kelly, who was shot near the heart. He knew the mortal nature of his wound, and as he rolled over said to Private Girbach, "I'm gone, sure; roll me around and make a breastwork of me." That was courage.

Private McKinzie of troop B was hit hard in the left shoulder. One of the surgeons saw he was wounded, and sent a litter bearer to bring him in. But McKinzie would not go. He insisted on shooting away at the stubborn foe. "I know I'm getting weak," said he, "but I've got to have a couple of shots yet." He died five or six times, and then he fainted from loss of blood and was taken to the rear.

Sergt. Tritle, of E troop, has what some people call "grit." His first wound was in his left hand, and a minute or two later he got another bad one in the hip. That would have satisfied the average warrior, but the sergeant was not inclined to retire. Just then Sergt. Nettles was killed almost at Tritle's side. Tritle saw the Indian who fired the fatal shot, and although his own left hand was shattered, and blood was pouring steadily from his hip, he said, "I'll get that Indian." He did, and an instant later a hostile bullet penetrated his left breast. "I guess I'll get these wounds dressed now," was his faint remark as he crawled for the rear.—Washington Star.

Wearing Overshoes in Dry Weather.

I have noticed during the dry walking many persons using "rubbers," as if the streets retained the mud and slush. I look upon the aberration of these wearers of rubbers as a result of yielding to the influences of a bad practice. For myself, whenever I have worn rubbers under stress of weather, I have been only too glad to cast them off at the first favorable opportunity; but many persons persist in keeping them on even at places of amusement, where they feel particularly oppressive from the high temperature. This tamely yielding to the arbitrary influence of an uncomfortable article of dress should be a warning against letting habit get the advantage of principle in such matters.

I have heard that in some places in New England, where the winter's cold is ordinarily severe, "arctics" are a feature of indoor gaieties, and that the "Portland Fancy," "All the Way to Boston," and similar dances are executed under the disadvantages of these incumbrances. Such experiences should be heeded by wearers of "rubbers" in dry weather, lest they fall under the control of these oppressive foot coverings, and perhaps be obliged to wear them to bed.—Boston Post.

A Signature That Escapes Criticism.

A document which was filed in the register's office recently bore a signature which would puzzle an expert to decipher. There was a bold start, a wild zigzagging of pen marks up and down, and finally a tangle which might be taken to mean anything that suited the fancy of the reader. Yet nobody felt called upon to criticize the penmanship, for the signature was at the bottom of the trust deed by which Baron Maurice de Hirsch gave $2,400,000 to ameliorate the condition of Hebrew immigrants to this country from Russia and Roumania. The baron has a fortune which some people say amounts to $100,000,000. Others put it at $200,000,000, but the difference is immaterial. When a man gets up above $500,000 nobody will bother about his skill with writing tools. In fact some of the critics in the register's office skilled in such matters gave the baron's signature a little praise. They said it was prettier than Jay Gould's anyhow.—New York Times.

An Interesting Experiment in Surgery.

Will the skin of a black man grafted upon a white man's body turn white? That is the question Dr. John Ege, of Reading, is solving. He has just grafted eighteen small pieces of cuticle from a Boston negro's arm to the spaces that will not heal on Joel Saul's white leg, which has been sore for two years and which did not readily assimilate all of the thirty pieces of healthy white skin planted thereon Jan. 10. Ten of the white particles did grow, though, some of them from the size of a pin head to two inches in diameter.

If the black skin should grow white on a white body it would give rise to entirely new theories in surgery.—Cor. Philadelphia Record.

Wears No. 19 Moccasins.

John Moriarty, who has been at work in Samuel Hodgkins' lumber camps at Black Brook, was in the city Monday, and while on the street attracted considerable attention. He stands 6 feet 9 inches in his stocking feet, is 25 years old and wears No. 19 moccasins. His feats of strength are renowned among the lumbermen. He left for Brownville, where he has made a contract to cut wood. Doubtless his swinging of the ax will compare with but few Maine choppers.—Bangor News.

"Calling In" a Newspaper.

There escaped the notice of the Russian censors in Finland the other day a small paragraph in a Swedish illustrated paper which, it appears, was not quite to the liking of the officials. When the objectionable paragraph was noticed an order came from the Russian officials that all numbers were to be "called in," and the police actually went from house to house and demanded that the papers should be given up.—London News.

It Doesn't Pay.

Out of fifty counterfeiters arrested in the last eighteen months only twenty-three of them had passed $50 worth of the "queen," and only five of them had made a profit of $3 per day for the time engaged. It doesn't pay as well as sawing wood at sixty cents a cord, and arrest is sure to come within a year or two.—Detroit Free Press.

High School Notes.

At the teachers' meeting held in Boston last week, Mr. E. J. Goodwin was elected one of the vice-presidents. Many interesting papers were read and enthusiastic discussions were held. One of the discussions which created much interest was the Boston Herald scholarship.

Many of the alumni of this school attending the Tech were at the dinner of the "Co-eds" last Friday evening in Boston.

Mr. Coffin, '91, has been appointed speaker for the next lyceum meeting.

The Review, full of interesting matter, came out this week.

One of my children had a very bad discharge from her nose. The discharge was without benefit. We tried Ely's Cream Balm, and much to our surprise, there was a marked improvement. We continued using the Balm and in a short time the discharge was cured.—O. A. Cary, Corning, N. Y.

Here are some French advertisements: "A governess—with diploma—would like to accompany a musical lady to the country and on the piano." Here is another: "Wanted—A French nurse who loves children of 7, 5 and 3 years." And here is the queerest: "Wanted—A professor to come twice a week to the house of a noble family in order to reform the pronunciation of a parrot."

We are somewhat surprised to find in our orthodox contemporary, the Religious Herald of Hartford, the following bit of information under the general heading "Ministers and Churches": "Miss Lillian Russell, the opera singer, has appeared in tight to the delight of hundreds of audiences in the 'Queen's Mate.' She lately tried a suit, and was defeated. Her bond was $2000. She had appeared already at 150 nights." As this is followed and preceded by items about Dwight L. Moody and other reverend gentlemen, we imagine that the editorial scissors must have slipped.—Christian Union.

An unfortunate man has obtained access to rich Baron Rapineau. He depicts his misfortunes, his misery, in so moving a manner that the baron, with tears in his eyes and his voice choked with sobs, calls to his servant: "Jean! Put this poor fellow out into the street! He is breaking my heart."—Le Figaro.

Street signs I like to read. They are significant. I read yesterday on one of the cross streets near my house, this: "School supplies, books, stationery, candy, chewing gum." I read at the West End lately the sign at the portal of a saloon: "Vacuum Cleaner." The saloon keeper had unconsciously expressed a great truth.—Chicago Advocate.

A Cure For Pimples.

Much interest was shown in the second Athletic Meet of the Newton High School at Armory Hall, Newton, on Tuesday evening last, and Newton Centre was well represented. Two of the prizes in the shape of elegant frosted silver cups were awarded to two of our promising young athletes, R. P. Bennett and T. Thomas, the former easily winning in the middle weight sparring contest, and the latter in the putting of the sixteen pound shot. Bennett was also active in his class tug-of-war team, and but for the unfair decision of the judge they would have probably come off victors.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Stearns of Parker street, celebrated their wedding, Tuesday evening. They received many beautiful, as well as useful presents. Reed, Misses Fountain, Mr. and Mrs. Frost, Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Stearns, Misses Kelsner, Miss Bunker, Mrs. Hall, Mr. Hammel, Mr. Hahn and Mr. E. W. Darrell. A really first-class amateur ball nine has been formed to represent Newton the coming season. The team as now made up is as follows: Pitcher, Fred R. The makeup of the team may be changed a little as soon as the college games are over, as the services of such players as Hovey, Soule and Capt. Dean of Harvard nine will be obtained. The captain of the nine is F. E. Cutler; manager, S. A. Shannon, who will play in some of the games. The team will play on Walworth's field, Newton Centre, and dates can be arranged with Fred Rising, secretary, Newton Centre, or with Mr. S. A. Shannon, the manager.

A supper was given to the older members of the Baptist church on Wednesday, the line was drawn as nearly as convenient at 60 years. About 100 guests, also, entertained supper and a beautiful bouillabaisse at each plate. Dr. S. F. Smith was at his best and greatly entertained and interested the company, giving something of the history of the church since he became its pastor about fifty years ago. He was, he thought, the oldest person in the room, all that were there of his age or older had one by one passed to the eternal world, unless perhaps Mr. Gunderson might be older. Mr. Gunderson arose to say that he was born in 1815, showing that the doctor antedated him by some seven years, his birth being in 1808. Rev. Dr. S. F. Smith, who succeeded N. Smith as pastor, also entertained the company with a pleasant notice of his connection with the church. The very enjoyable occasion was followed by the usual church sociable.

The ladies of the Lakeside club entertained the gentlemen of the club on Saturday evening last at the residence of Mrs. Small, Walnut St. The exercises were fine, consisting of music, tableaux, readings, living pictures and an entertaining farce in which all parts were taken by ladies. Refreshments were served. The nature of the entertainment was carefully kept a secret from the gentlemen who were expected by appearing in black masks and gloves and white dominoes which completely disguised them. The evening was skillfully managed in every respect and greatly enjoyed by all.

We congratulate our friends and neighbors, the residents of Waban, on their exceedingly successful and pleasing entertainment of Wednesday evening. Those who were so fortunate as to have been present, will not soon let slip from memory the many beautiful representations of historical incident and imaginative scenes which passed with such ease and grace over the stage. To single out a few for special praise, where all were so good, would scarcely be an easy task, but we cannot avoid saying that nothing could exceed the wither of St. Valentine's day or the paths of the old year; while the sweet, and hopeful in the innocent face of the new year, must have touched all alike. Miss Cushing performed her part most admirably and those who were absent, that evening, deserved to be consoled with the loss of a great enjoyment. The thanks of the community are certainly due to the ladies who projected and executed so finely the whole program.

Mr. J. W. Mitchell is changing the location of his coal office to the opposite end of the building occupied by him for this purpose, and will be much more convenient in his weighing scales will be inside the office.

Rev. John Peterson preached the final sermon of his term in this place last Sunday. It was not a farewell sermon for Mr. Peterson does not believe in making far well addresses, and he hopes often still to preach in the pulpit where he has remained for the past five years. The attendance was one of the largest ever having.

Two serious accidents have happened at the Pettie Machine Works this week. On Monday R. T. Sullivan of Eliot street was hit by a piece of casting and had two ribs broken.

On Wednesday Edward Pitts of the Newton Centre while placing some casting, slipped and fell breaking his left elbow. Both men were attended by Dr. McEwen.

At the Baptist church, last Sunday evening, the members of Echo Temple and Malabar street, Falmouth Circle, occupied the six front seats and listened to a very pleasant and profitable "memorial sermon" delivered by Rev. G. W. Holman.

The building was well filled but some of the congregation were disappointed in not seeing the choir in its accustomed place.

One cannot help noticing the marked increase of interest at the Baptist church of this village. Some fifteen months ago the attendance was small and no choir aided in the services; now there is an average attendance of ninety and a chorus choir of ten voices, which materially assists in divine worship. The pastor is encouraged and inspired to preach with renewed energy, excellent sermons, which are attentively listened to and profited by. May the good work go on.

takes all the room available at the old stand, and Mr. Murray has decided to Murray to look after it. A glance at the great number of carriages standing in the vicinity shows how extensive the business is, and Mr. Murray has gained the patronage of all of this section of Newton, besides good deal from the other wards. The making of new carriages to order is one branch of the business that has grown to a large extent, and Mr. Murray's carriage making high reputation for excellent workmanship and good wearing qualities.

ecutive committee. Rev. Mr. Hornbrook then read an interesting paper on "Three fold functions of the church."

—Mr. Frederick Grant died at his late residence, Nonantum St. early Monday morning, after a protracted illness. The cause of his death was heart disease from which he had been a sufferer the greater portion of the winter. He was born in Walpole, N. H., 62 years ago, where he spent part of his early life. Coming to Boston when a young man, he entered a prominent dry goods house where he learned the business and later through his enterprise and pluck traveling for a time as a humorous lecturer he was appointed clearance officer at the Boston Custom House, where he served for widow and five children survive him. The funeral took place from his residence, Tuesday afternoon, Rev. William H. Savage, pastor of First Unitarian Church, Water-to Lowell for interment.

WATERING STREETS.

Alderman Fenno presented a certified copy of the act recently passed by the legislature in regard to watering of streets, which provides that the city council may expend money for same and charge the cost on the abutters, in their annual tax bills, the same as other taxes on real estate.

Alderman Fenno also reported an order referring the matter to highway committee with instructions to report on the adoption of the same.

An order was passed appropriating $25 for temporary assistance in the city clerk's office.

$800 was appropriated for draining and improving the Newton Centre playground, on condition that the citizens raise an equal amount.

Orders were passed appropriating $55,000 for city expenses during May.

INSURANCE.

Alderman Hyde called up the question of insurance and said he understood that the finance committee were to present an order authorizing them to advertise for proposals. The public property committee were able to do their own advertising and he therefore presented an order authorizing the mayor, chairman of finance committee and chairman of public property committee to advertise for proposal, for insuring the city buildings.

Alderman Luke said he would like to substitute an order authorizing the finance committee to advertise for proposals. The matter had been referred to them, and they were not ready to report, as they did not know the cost of such insurance. If they knew the cost they would know what to report. The question was largely a financial one.

Alderman Fenno thought it was a matter for the finance committee, as in corporations such matters were left to the financial officers.

Alderman Hyde thought the matter had been held over long enough. It was referred to the finance committee two months ago for advice, and they have given none as yet.

The order was then put to vote and Alderman Hyde's motion was lost by a tie vote.

Alderman Luke presented his order, and after remarks by Alderman Luke, Shepard and Fenno, and Alderman Hyde and Harbach, the order was also defeated by a tie vote.

Capron C. Cook of Elm street, West Newton, and Chas. H. Breck of Bellevue street, Newton, were then drawn as jurors, after which the board adjourned to Tuesday evening, April 21st, at 7.15 o'clock.

The Newton Cremation Society.

The meeting held at the house of Mr. Geo. A. Walton, West Newton, last Friday evening, in the interest of the N. E. Cremation Society, was very fully attended, some fifty persons being present to listen to the very able and convincing paper, read by Mr. John Storer Cobb, on the bearing of Cremation upon the health of the community. So much interest was evinced that, at the close of the address, some ten persons at once enrolled themselves as members of the society, and a Newton branch was formed to act in co-operation with the main society in working to promote a wider public sentiment in favor of cremation as a mode of burial. Those who have become members of the society pay $3.00 yearly for a period of twelve years, when no more will be asked. From these subscriptions an incrementation fund is provided and the society pays incrementation of any of its deceased members.

As the Newton Crematorium may be erected near Boston, in connection with one of the cemeteries, next fall.

Mr. James T. Allen of West Newton was made chairman of the committee of the Newton branch of the society, and all communications relative to it may be addressed to him, and he will be very glad to receive applications for membership.

Waban Racquet Club.

The Waban Racquet Club opens its fifth season under very flattering conditions. This organization was founded in September 1886 with courts on Galen street. Finding the accommodations inadequate the club has leased new grounds on Boyd St. and will proceed at once to lay out courts and make the grounds attractive. The courts, six in number, will be constructed in the most scientific manner.

Among the members of the club are some of the most prominent young men in the Garden City. By a conservative policy it has worked its way upward till it stands to-day the senior tennis club in Newton. The officers are: Pres., Harry A. Finn; Treasurer, W. L. Sampson; Secretary, John C. Griswold; member at large, James R. Griswold. These officers constitute the Executive committee.

By next season the courts will be in good running order. The location is an excellent one and reflects much credit on the Executive committee. Players will be provided with all conveniences, city water, etc.

At the last meeting of the club it was decided to change its policy to a more liberal one in order to meet the demands of players for suitable grounds. The club will soon publish its prospectus for the coming season.

Fabrics Suitable for the Season.

The making of gentlemen's garments is an industry that requires for its success the highest degree of artistic skill in every branch of the business as well as the greatest mechanical ingenuity in devising for the perfect economical accomplishment of good fitting. There is no limit to the range of colors or materials which enter into the composition of the gentlemen's dress. Competition in the tailoring business has been the means of bringing down the prices of custom work to a very low figure.

Of those having made a favorable impression upon your correspondent is the house of Sisson & Henderson, of 37 Boylston street, Boston. Although this is a young house (having been established less than a year) the members of the firm are well known, having been connected with the business for many years prior to engaging in business for themselves. In this short time they have built up a good trade. An invitation to their Spring opening having been received, your correspondent called at their rooms and had the pleasure of inspecting their fine line of cloths which consists of an excellent variety and large assortment of foreign and domestic make. As this is their first Spring opening, every pattern is new. Many English novelties were noticed among the collection. All of these goods were especially selected for the season. Messrs. Sisson & Henderson employ the most skillful of cutters and none but capable hands, who make up the best class of goods, and they count among their patrons some of the best dressed young men in Boston.

They have pleasant and well fitted-up rooms in which to exhibit their stock of fine cloths and trimmings. For the Spring trade their prices are reasonable, in fact, much less than will be found in other first class houses, for the same quality of work and material. No inferior work is ever allowed to leave their establishment. It is their aim to satisfy their customers, and those giving them a trial will find them obliging and liberal in all their dealings.—Mercantile and Financial Times of N. Y.

Felt That Way Sometimes.

[From the Chicago Tribune.] "Have you never thought, Mr. Cahokia," exclaimed the soulful Boston girl, "that the inharmonious of litigious and pastric natures is due to the diversity of view points from which they inspect the idols of the realm of mentality rather than to any inherent aloofness in the diverse pneumatic structures themselves, and that a homogeneity of psychic impressions might be attained by semipiternal efforts to approximate as to view-points?"

"Er—yes, I don't know but I have, Miss Howjames," replied the young man from St. Louis, helplessly, "but if I had it right bad, I think I'd call a doctor."

Newton Boat Club.

The annual meeting of the Newton Boat Club was held Monday evening. The election of officers resulted in the choice of the following: W. S. Eaton, Jr., president; Sydney Harwood, vice-president; C. W. Loring, treasurer; Morton E. Cobb, secretary. Minor changes were made in the by-laws, and a factor which would develop for a regular meeting, at least once a month, of the membership committee, and the granting of the use of the club property to ladies from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. The questions of additions to the clubhouse and the remodeling of the bowling alleys were discussed and it was shown that the contemplated improvements would cost about $600, providing for regulation alleys with a 16-foot run and the enlargement of the hall space by extensions from the west and south sides of the house, with other alterations and relocations of balconies. The preference of the members present was shown to be strongly in favor of the improvements which would insure an increased interest in bowling and in those necessary changes which would enable the club to put a team in the field the coming season. The purchase of a war canoe from designs of Mr. Gerrish with capacity for carrying a party of from 15 to 20 persons was left as a secondary consideration, dependent upon the club funds after the sums needed for the clubhouse improvements had been provided for. The members seemed to appreciate the fact that bowling, under proper circumstances on regulation alleys, would be a source of revenue and a factor which would develop interest in club matters. The sport has proved a strong card in other clubs and the game has become the popular and fascinating fad. A committee was appointed to arrange for the customary Junior regatta and authorized to expend such sums as the executive committee may provide for the purpose. A vote of thanks was passed, expressing the club's appreciation of the services of its officers and members of the executive committee.

A Novel Invention in the Sewing Machine Line.

The Domestic Sewing Machine Co. has recently obtained entire control of an improvement in a sewing machine attachment that bids fair to revolutionize the trade. With a simple attachment called a "looper" which is placed in the shuttle carrier in the place of the shuttle, a perfect chain stitch is produced, thus combining in the "Domestic" which is acknowledged to be the best lock stitch machine in the world, all the desirable qualities of the best chain stitch machine on the market.

Samples of the work done by this new attachment shows that a perfect chain stitch is made, either with cotton, linen or silk thread, so that those who have admired that class of work and regretted that it could be obtained only by the use of a machine designed for the purpose, can by the aid of this new attachment perform all such work while having the added benefits of all the resources of the standard lock stitch machine of the world for other purposes. The attachment is simple in the extreme. All that is required is to remove the shuttle and put the "looper" in its place. The work is done in plain sight, is easily handled, and, as with chain stitching machines, can be easily unravelled if desired.

THE object of this association is to furnish homes to its members on an instalment plan at the very lowest cost. According to the lapses on old line insurance and one to five year orders for the past five years, fifty per cent. of all have lapsed. We find by careful investigation, a homestead costing Three Thousand Dollars can be obtained at a cost of about Eighteen Hundred Dollars to all members of this association. Our plan is this; All members pay five Dollars to join this association and as soon as this fund reaches the amount of Three Thousand Dollars, certificate holder No. 1 can buy or build a house, select his own location, and make his own contract for building, plans and specifications to be approved by the association. The members shall first give a mortgage for Three Thousand Dollars without interest, less the amount paid in by said member, and shall continue to pay his weekly instalment until his mortgage is paid up in full.

SOURCES OF PROFIT.

THE lapse element. It is impossible to hold any considerable number of persons together in any kind of an association with change; old members drop out and new ones come in, change in condition, alteration of mind, death, etc.; all contribute to exemplify this principle, and constitute an inevitable law by which the persistent members realize a large profit. All members stand equal, as each one has to pay in full for his homestead, less the lapses, which, according to past five years' experience, place the lapses at fifty per cent. This will reduce the cost of each member's Three Thousand Dollar house to Eighteen Hundred Dollars, or less. Ninety per cent. of all instalments go to the building fund, ten per cent. to the general fund to pay the expenses of the association.

OFFER

NEWTON TARIFF REFORM CLUB. The Tariff is a Tax.

Every person interested in the subject of the Tariff, is cordially invited to take part in the discussions carried on in this column. Respected consideration will be given to inquiries, criticisms, and communications of every kind, whether coming from Tariff Reformers, Free Traders or High Protectionists. Address Secretary of the Tariff Reform Club, Newton Centre, Mass.

A Strange Omission.

Neither of our Senators in their speeches before the Massachusetts Club remembered that when the War Tariff was made, and especially when compensatory duties were added on account of internal taxation, distinct pledges were made for a decrease when the need of an enormous revenue should have passed by. The internal taxes were abolished one after the other, but the protected industries had become accustomed to high duties, and they have so far succeeded, not only in staying off any reduction, but in getting some important advances. The most extreme protectionists of 1861 never dreamed of such a tariff as we now have for a time of peace, with internal taxation on manufactures all abolished.

An Important Admission.

Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island, in his speech before the New Republican Club, made this important admission when speaking of the beauties of reciprocity:

Ninety per cent. of the goods bought by all the South American countries are goods that can be manufactured in New England as cheaply as anywhere else in the world, because the higher rates of wages paid by us do not prevent our competing in certain articles. We have in many cases so increased the use of our machinery by the skill of our operatives and mechanics that we can compete successfully; at the same time we are paying larger wages, so that the goods can be produced in New England in competition with any country.

We are glad to see this admission that high wages do not always or generally mean high cost of production.

It Doesn't Work Yet.

The Boston Advertiser says: There is no doubt but the sale of woollens to date has not been up to the expectations of manufacturers. The higher duty on foreign goods, which went into effect Oct. 6, induced the feeling among the woollen men at the time that this would greatly increase the home manufacture of these fabrics. That the business placed with manufacturers to date is not larger than usual cannot be ascribed to an unsatisfactory working of the tariff, but is entirely due to other influences.

Why not allow that the duty on foreign wool, while doing no good to the domestic wool producer, handicaps the American manufacturer? The duty on wool should be abolished.

An Object Lesson.

Anybody can see the benefit the consumer gets by making sugar practically free. The extreme protectionists are making the most of it by tongue and pen. By so doing they are calling sharp attention to the fact that the tariff is a tax.

In the Soup.

[From the Boston Herald.]

Shortly after the McKinley bill passed through Congress, the proprietor of one of the largest and most successful restaurants in this city complained to the dealer from whom he bought his china that the price of this had been increased. He was informed that the change was necessary in consequence of the increased duty, and that he, the restaurateur, must make good this extra cost by additional charges on his account. After reflecting a moment he replied that he thought the best way would be to increase the price charged for soup taken by his customers at their lunches, as this would quite offset the additional outlay. As has probably been discovered by many, this advance in price has been made, and hundreds, or perhaps thousands, are now daily paying for their noonday plate of soup five cents more than they were accustomed to pay, or in the case of each individual from $10 to $15 a year tax as a result of the existing McKinley law.

He Was Coerced.

A candidate for the U. S. Senate in North Dakota has had to explain that as a member of the present House of Representatives he was obliged to vote for the McKinley bill or he could have got no plums for his section.

Labor Cost of Production.

Under the authority of Congress, Col. Carroll D. Wright has prepared, or is preparing statistics of the cost of labor in production in the iron, steel, coal, coke, worsted, woollen, cotton, glass and other great branches of industry. Only brief summaries of the cost of pig iron and steel have been given, but these are decidedly interesting as a foretaste of what is to come.

Taking as an illustration the average cost of a ton of pig iron at 24 northern and 24 southern furnaces, the average labor cost at the North, where it may be presumed wages paid are higher than at the South, is $2.20 per ton. In the South it is $2.24 per ton; but the average cost of producing a ton of iron, taking in all of the items of expenditure, is at the northern furnaces $10.75, and at the southern furnaces $10.75. In a word, the difference due to superior location, the easy transportation of ore, limestone and coal is more than equal to the entire labor cost of production in either district. The same condition of affairs holds good in the northern states, for one of the tables of analysis given by Col. Wright is the total cost of one ton of pig iron, from the mining of the materials to the finished product, inclusive. At one of the northern furnaces the direct labor cost is $9.44, and the total cost of a ton of pig iron is $13.97. In another northern furnace the direct labor cost is $4.41, and the cost of a ton of pig iron is $15.28—that is, the gross expenditure is smallest in the case of the furnace where the direct labor cost is more than twice as large as with the other.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.—Mr. W. H. Crane has been greeted with large audiences at the Hollis Street Theatre during his present engagement which closes Saturday evening. "The Senator" could have been given a long run in Boston but gives away to another star attraction. On Monday evening next, Miss Julia Marlowe, the talented American actress, whose success has been rapid but well earned, commences her engagement at the Hollis, and will be seen as Juliet, repeating the impersonation, on the following evening and at the Wednesday matinee. Wednesday evening will be devoted to "As You Like It," Thursday to "Pygmalion and Galatea," Friday, "As You Like It," and Saturday evening, "Ingomar." The sale of seats has been large and the theatre promises to be well filled on the opening and succeeding nights of the engagement.

BOSTON THEATRE.—The last performances of Mr. Hoyt's clever piece, "A Midnight Bell," will be given at the Boston Theatre this (Friday,) and Saturday evening with the usual Saturday afternoon matinee. The Soudan returns next week and will be presented with the original elaborate scenery and costumes. Its long run early in the season was only limited by priority of other attractions and it easily won its way into popular favor. The dramatic situations are very clever, the scenic beauties of the piece have seldom been surpassed and the characters are sustained by an admirable company. Miss Emma Vaders will be seen as Nellie Temple, otherwise the cast will remain the same as when previously presented. Those who have not seen it cannot afford to miss the opportunity presented by the return engagement. The advance sale of seats has already been very large.

Frank M. Buckley and Charles S. Harris of the Boston Theatre will have a concert and monologue entertainment on the evening of May 3, in which Joseph Haworth, Henry Neville, Forest Robinson, Lew Dockstader, Charley Reed, Lottie Glover and many other favorites will take part.

Stage Manager William Dixon of the Hollis Street Theatre is preparing an excellent program for his annual benefit concert, which is to take place at the Hollis Street Theatre on Sunday evening, May 3.

TREMONT THEATRE.—For six successive evenings and the Saturday matinee of the next week, April 20th, the eminent lecturer, whose fame and popularity, both of the superlative order, are now national, Mr. John L. Stoddard, will deliver, in the Tremont Theatre, the lecture which has been readily and quickly accorded the highest place among his many brilliant efforts—"The Passion Play of 1890." His depiction gives one a profound respect for the "Passion Play" actors, and a kindred feeling for the play itself, its musical features, its scenic grandeur, and the faithfulness of the lecturer's description. All this, and more, Mr. Stoddard shows in a masterful manner and in accord with his efforts, the largest possible assemblages in this country have evinced the deepest interest. Managers Burditt & North and Managers Abbey & Schofield are united in the feeling that this series of lectures in a theatre is novel as an offering; but likewise agree in the belief that it will prove a week of combined instruction and pleasure to all participants.

The Sewerage of Newton.

To the Editor of the Graphic:

The real question now before the city is as to the repeal of the hastily adopted ordinance.

It is so demonstrated that none can deny, that in its operation it is impossible not to do great injustice to many, with just ground to fear that it may prove absolutely ruinous to others. Under these circumstances the citizens of Newton ask the rescinding of the vote of acceptance of that ordinance.

With time and freedom to give the subject the study its importance demands, and to frame the wisest measure possible for the accomplishment of its ends, in a case of such magnitude, it is the moral as well as civil right of the citizens of Newton. No valid objection has been offered to this course, or can be, it is so self-evident for the interest of all. Never before has the subject been discussed on its merits. It is a subject of great difficulty as well as of great magnitude, and calls for the best efforts of our most able minds with unbounded patriotism. The end of all law and of legislation, is equity and justice, and when the best possible scheme is devised we have no fear of the Legislature of the State proving a bar, if rightly appealed to, we think the danger more likely to come from the pride of dominant spirits committed to it, the danger is too great. We already hear of those who have sold and left Newton from fear of its ordinance, and to our common sense it is plainly impossible to be otherwise, many will do the same whether we hear of them or not, and many others who would have come to Newton will go elsewhere if this ordinance is established. With any amendments that are possible, the value of this remarkable measure they are really never ill. It is a perfect safeguard against all forms of malaria, sick and nervous headache, palpitation, dyspepsia and heartburn.

Instant relief for croup, by using Johnson's Anodyne Liniment internally as well as externally.

"Johnny, is your sister at home?" said the young man at the front door. "Wait till I light the gas—or hold on—is your hair sandy?" "Why, no," replied the abashed youth. "Have you got a moustache that curls up at the ends?" "No—no, I don't wear a moustache at all." "Hum. Have you got a large seal ring on the fourth finger of your left hand?" "No, I haven't." "Then," said Johnny, confidently, "she ain't at home," and he shut the door without further to do.—Washington Post.

The Spring Medicines.

The popularity which Hood's Sarsaparilla has gained as a spring medicine is wonderful. It possesses just those elements of health-giving blood-purifying and appetite-restoring which everybody needs to need at this season. Do not continue in a dull, tired, unsatisfactory condition when you may be so much benefited by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It purifies the blood and makes the weak strong.

AMATEUR INTERCLUB BOWLING.

The Arlington Boat Club and Norfolk House Casino teams of the Amateur Bowling League played an interesting neutral game on the alleys of the Newton Club last Friday evening.

The Arlingtons took the lead in the first string, rolling 769 pins to 721 for their opponents. They gained 18 pins additional on the second string, and at the commencement of the third the Norfolk House boys had a lead of 66 pins to overcome. They started in with a succession of strikes and spares, and made a great effort to win. At the close of the seventh frame the score was about even. The Arlingtons finished, however, in great shape, and won the match by 49 pins.

Hill was high roller, with a total of 505. He also made the best 10-frame score of 177 in the first string.

Gillette made the best record for the Norfolk House, and Goodman distinguished himself by taking some difficult combinations, making one spare by knocking down the right centre and two corner pins on his second ball.

The game was practically undecided until the last three frames, and was an important victory for the Arlingtons, as it ties them in games won with the Newtons. The summary:

SAVAGE WINS THE CUP.
The second half of the string contest between Capt. W. J. Follett and Mr. A. A. Savage, for the Newton Club challenge trophy—a handsome hall clock—was rolled Tuesday evening.

In the first half of the contest Follett knocked down 811 pins and Savage 833. The rolling between the two men Tuesday evening was less even, Follett failing to keep up his customary average. His best scores were made in the last two strings, and he made some fine shots, getting one very difficult combination by knocking down the two left corner and the right corner pins on his second ball, yielding a well-earned spare, which brought forth a round of applause.

Savage bowled in good form, making a fine score in every string except the third, and finishing with a 10-frame score of 203.

The record of each string is as follows: Follett, 141, 147, 130, 162, 167—753; Savage, 101, 182, 132, 153, 203—831. Savage's total for the 10 strings was 1064; Follett's 1564; the former winning the match and the clock by an even 100 pins. Savage's average for the 10 strings was 106.4-10; Follett's 156.4-10.

The clock has been twice won by Capt. Follett in 10-string matches, and would have become his property had he succeeded in defeating all corners until June next. The present winner of the trophy must hold it, subject to challenges for a year. Several gentlemen have already signified their intention of challenging.

—Mayor Hibbard rung in a general alarm from box 224, Saturday afternoon, to test the efficiency of the fire department. The box is a private one situated on the grounds of the valuable mill property of the Nonantum Worsted Company. The principal apparatus responded in the following order: Truck 1 and hose 4, 6 minutes; steamer 1 and hose 1, 6 12 minutes; steamer 2, 11 minutes; hose 2, 11 12 minutes; steamer 3 and hose 3, 13 minutes; hose 5, 16 minutes; Assistant Chief, 10 minutes; chief, 11 minutes; hose 6, 18 minutes; hose 7, 18 12 minutes. Considering the amount of ground covered in reaching the box—from 11-2 to nearly five miles—the time made by the several pieces of apparatus is considered excellent. The quick record of getting there made by the Newton Centre apparatus seems worthy of especial mention. The test would seem to indicate that the West Newton steamer is really in commission.

WHO IS TO BE THE NEXT BISHOP?

AN ADDRESS DELIVERED IN GRACE CHURCH, NEWTON, BY THE REV. DR. G. W. SHINN, APRIL 12, 1891.

Somewhere about the year 1750 there was circulated in Boston a picture which was intended to show how bitterly the people of Massachusetts were opposed to Bishops. This caricature represents a crowd of excited colonists down at the end of a wharf. Some are brandishing clubs, others are waving banners, on which are inscriptions, others throwing books, and some are trying to shove off a vessel from the end of the wharf.

The vessel is supposed to have come from England, bringing among her passengers a Bishop for New England.

But in 1750 they thought they had no use for a Bishop in Massachusetts, and no room for him.

It is said in Cotton's Magnolia that it was not to be endured that Episcopacy should rear its mitred head here. The first colonists had come into the wilderness to worship God without Episcopacy, without common prayer, without the old ceremonies of the English Church. They would have things their own way. No Quaker, no Baptist, should interfere with them, or find a lodging place among them. But the man to be most dreaded, and against whose coming they complained most bitterly was a Bishop.

This old picture of which I have spoken represents the popular feeling of the period some twenty years or so before the Revolution. They wanted no Bishop in Massachusetts, and so the picture shows the populace shoving off the vessel with the Bishop on board, while some hurl at him copies of such books as "Calvin's works" and "Sydney on Government."

Now contrast with this what you have seen in the Boston newspapers during the last few months. First of all, there were daily bulletins giving an account of the condition of a dying man. Every item of information about him that could be gathered appeared daily in the columns of nearly every Boston paper.

After while the man died, and then not only were these same papers filled with accounts of the funeral, but with the most appreciative biographical sketches of the man, and with laudations of the work he had done in this state. I need not tell you that the man was Bishop Paddock.

Surely there has been a mighty change in popular feeling towards Bishops when we think of the old caricature of 1750 and the newspapers of 1891.

But we see how vivid this contrast is when you think of the popular interest in Bishop Paddock's successor. It is quite startling to those who have always been in the Church to witness the interest which all sorts of conditions of men take in filling this office. Newspaper articles are written by men who are not themselves Churchmen, discussing the merits of different clergymen who have been named, and communications are printed favoring this one and that one. People of other religious bodies are continually asking us, "Who is to be the next Bishop?" and some of them are expressing themselves as deeply interested in the issue.

It would seem almost as if there were to be an election of a Bishop for all the Christian bodies in Massachusetts instead of an election for a Bishop of the Episcopal Church in the diocese of Massachusetts.

Now what have brought about these great changes? How is it that so vivid a contrast is possible, as that presented by the picture of the people on the wharf pushing off the vessel containing the Bishop, and the other picture which might be drawn, representing men of all sorts and conditions, standing ready to give the new Bishop of Massachusetts the warmest, the kindest welcome?

No doubt there are many ways of accounting for the change. Perhaps there are two, especially worthy of being stated as having had much to do with it. One is that Episcopacy today is shorn of some of the features which made it very repellant to the Puritans of long ago.

With all our loyalty to the past as Churchmen, it is hard for us to excuse the narrowness, the arrogance, the worldliness and the oppressive spirit which were exhibited in some periods of English history by some who were called to fill the highest offices in the Church. All Bishops were not meek and quiet men, not always peace loving and simple minded, not always deeply pious and well learned. They were not all good examples unto others. The influence of the pomp and vanities of this world, the love of power, and their impatience towards those who opposed them, produced sad results in some, who in the past wore the mitre.

Not all Bishops were lovely in their lives, and some of them had the strange notion that you can get rid of heresy by prosecuting heretics, and that the short and easy way to heal schism is to scatter the schismatics over the earth. The persecutions never have succeeded and never will succeed. Much less could persecution be a happy way of setting straight the errors of the Church's own children who did not want to be heretics or schismatics at all, who had grievances more or less real, and who with more or less force presented these grievances.

It is much to be regretted that there was not a greater willingness on the part of the Church of England to listen more carefully to the complaints of the Puritans. It is true that most of these complaints were supremely absurd and that if the general position taken by the complainants had been admitted the English Church would have ceased to be a branch of the Historic Body, and would have been only a petty sect in Christendom.

But with all this it was not necessary to be so harsh and uncharitable towards them. It was this tone of harshness, and this lack of charity which helped drive the Puritans and their descendants from England. It was this, too, which gave rise to such a dread of Bishops in the colonial period of our country.

Observe, I say helped to alienate them, helped to give them these impressions. In justice to the English Church it must be said that there were other causes at work. There were political intrigues, and a great deal that was far from being religious at all. There was also some crafty work done by enemies of the Church who thought they would gain their own purposes all the better by stirring up strife among the Church's children.

It would be utterly unfair to lay all the blame upon the English Church. There were many circumstances which led to this alienation of the children of the Church from their mother.

But in whatever ways the erroneous belief was fostered, many of the Puritans here regarded a Bishop as an outward and visible sign of a dominating spirit, which would crush out the liberty of the people in Church and in state. He was as hateful to them as was a King, and so they would have none of him among them.

The Puritan mistook the abuses of the office for the essential features of the office itself, and much of what he complained of arose from the very temper of the times.

There has been a change for the better in the Church since these pugnacious days, and men see more clearly than ever before that the Episcopate does not make any man a lord over God's heritage, but it gives him greater opportunity to be the servant of others.

Men see more than once they did that a Bishop is a man in a post of highest responsibility for spiritual work, and that the office itself is so infinitely exalted that no mere worldly honors can add anything to it. As the Church itself has grown to understand better what the office of a Bishop is, so there has been the removal of many of the features which alienated the Puritans of an earlier day.

The fault of this alienation, it has been frankly confessed, was partly that of the Church of England, herself. It was also part of the fault of the Puritan separatists, themselves. They were men whose strong virtues and bitter prejudices and very perverse traits were strangely united. They were not all gentle and saintly and broad and tolerant.

Their descendants praise their good points today, but wisely say nothing about their failings.

If the Puritans of an early day were all to come back to Massachusetts now and to be as hard and harsh, as pugnacious and as peculiar as they were once, no set of men would find them so unwelcome as their own descendants.

The times have changed. The pugnacity, the narrowness, the bigotry, the intolerance of a past day have happily passed away, and so we find ourselves in a community from which the old prejudices are fast passing.

Nothing confirms this fact more than the very interest which all Christian bodies in Massachusetts show today in the selection of a Bishop.

Forty years ago such an event would have made but a ripple upon the surface of popular thought in this state. Today it excites general interest. The Church has grown greatly since good old Dr. Bass of Newburyport became the first Bishop of this diocese.

Massachusetts has had five Bishops, and is on the point of electing the sixth. It may be interesting to look for a moment at the men who have filled this office in the past.

First on the list comes Edward Bass. He was first elected in 1780, but could not be consecrated then, so resigned. His second election took place in 1796, and on the 7th of May, 1797, he was consecrated in Philadelphia.

In May, 1798 he met the Convention of the Diocese in old Trinity Church, Boston. It was a very small gathering. There were only five clergymen and seven laymen present. That was emphatically the day of small things for the Episcopal Church in Massachusetts.

There were but two churches in Boston in 1797, Trinity Church and Christ Church. King's Chapel, which was older than either, had been appropriated by people of another faith. Outside of Boston there were a few other parishes and some missions, but Episcopacy was a feeble plant here.

Dr. Bass did not find the duties of his office very heavy, even when combined with the care of St. Paul's parish, Newburyport, for he lived to be 77 years old, passing away Sept. 13, 1803.

The second Bishop, Dr. Parker of Trinity, Boston, lived but a short time after his consecration. He was a noble man, and his Episcopate would have been most useful, but before he had opportunity to exercise any Episcopal functions he was called to his rest in Paradise. Then came Bishop Griswold, Massachusetts at that time formed part of what was known as the Eastern Diocese. Bishop Griswold lived in Bristol, R. I., and administered the affairs of the associated dioceses with great fidelity, having all the time the care of a parish. His memory as a man of deep piety and of great energy of character, can never die. After him came Bishop Eastburn, when Massachusetts again became a separate diocese, and fifth on the list was Bishop Paddock.

I cannot speak of this noble man who has just gone from us without having the picture of him come up before me, as he was with us last Ascension night. You will remember the beautiful service held, and the confirmation class made up of people from this parish and several educational institutions.

Ah, we did not realize then that his blessing that night was his last utterance in the Church which he loved so well. He seemed always happy to come here. Every one greeted him as a friend, and now we mourn him as one removed from us.

"We give God thanks for the good example of the Bishop, who for 18 years administered so judiciously the important affairs of the Church in this diocese, and whose gracious, peace-loving spirit impressed itself upon all departments of the work in which he engaged. His Episcopate will be memorable because of the decided growth of the Church in numbers and influence in this diocese, because of the planting of many new missions into parishes, because of the large expenditure of means by parishes to enable them to do better work, and because of the springing into active life of many new agencies for doing good to the bodies and souls of men."

Many of the good things done during the past 18 years were made possible or were greatly encouraged by his example of patience, devotion and sincerity, and by the happy unity and earnestness which he manifested in his diocese.

Bishop Paddock leaves his diocese in good condition, for according to the statistics of a year ago it has nearly 200 clergymen, 187 missions and parishes, 62 lay readers, over 27,000 communicants, and about 90,000 baptized members, over 20,000 children and teachers in Sunday School, and in 1890 contributed nearly $4 of a million of dollars.

Among its institutions are The Theological School at Cambridge, St. Mark's School at Northboro, the Church School at Groton, St. Luke's Home for Convalescents, the Church Home for Orphans, and a great variety of benevolent and charitable organizations for all kinds of Christian work.

It is a noble diocese, comparing it with others in the United States. It stands fourth on the list in the number of its clergy, and third on the list in contributions to religious purposes. It is a noble diocese, and if the rate of progress continues during the next 20 years, as during the past 20, it will stand almost abreast with New York and Pennsylvania.

Now who is to take the leadership of a diocese which has come so nobly forward into the front ranks?

Who is to succeed the good man who has just passed away from us?

WHO IS TO BE OUR NEXT BISHOP? I cannot tell. No one can tell. We are praying that God, the Holy Ghost, will guide us aright so that we shall have a Bishop after His own heart.

When God will place over us we cannot tell, but whoever is made the Bishop of Massachusetts is sure of cordial welcome and loyal support.

While, however, this matter of sending us a Bishop is left to the overruling of divine providence, it may not be inappropriate to sketch the outlines of the Bishop, whom some of us, perhaps all of us, hope may be sent.

We may be mistaken in our ideal, but let us look at some of the features of his case as meeting what we think to be the needs of the diocese.

First of all, it seems to us that he ought to be a Massachusetts man, by birth, education and sympathies.

For he who always lived here can scarcely understand how hard it is for us strangers, who have come from other regions, to fit into the grooves, and to understand the life of this state.

It seems very clear that if there is a Massachusetts man able to fill the place he ought to be thought of.

Then again, the Bishop ought to be a tolerant man, not a narrow partisan. We do not want some small, shriveled soul to rule over us in the interest of a party. The day of that sort of tyranny is gone. It would be a calamity to elect a partisan Bishop, who would seek to fasten on the diocese just such views as his party permitted him to hold. No, we do not want a Bishop of that sort.

Third, neither do we want a Bishop who will ignore all these great Christian forces laboring so earnestly on every side of us.

Loyal as we want to be to our Church, we do not think it consistent with the best interests of Christianity, to treat these Christian people with anything like coldness or disrespect.

We need not be any less loyal to the Church if we try to love all who love the Lord Jesus Christ.

It may be that we cannot endorse all views they hold, but that does not prevent our recognizing in Christian brethren the best elements of the Massachusetts mind. We do not want a Bishop who will violate Church laws, but we do want one who, while obeying these laws, will not interpret them so narrowly as to create an Episcopal sect here instead of a great, generous Church.

Fourth, let me add that one other trait which we desire in our coming Bishop is that he will somehow recognize himself as the Bishop of Massachusetts, and not merely as the Bishop of the Episcopal Church in the diocese of Massachusetts.

This wide spread interest in the coming man means something. It does not mean that all the clergymen and members of the household are to give up at once their varied views and to come together in happy union.

It does not mean that our new Bishop is to have the allegiance of every Christian in this state. Not at all, but it means something.

What does it mean? Why, surely this, that there is a welcome to be given any strong, vigorous worker who will do all he can for the cause of Christ in Massachusetts. It means too, that people are catching glimpses of what the Episcopal Church can become as a bond of union between those who are not in the future, what organization is there to hold out any hope?

Perhaps many do not realize why they are today so much interested in this election of a new Bishop, and here may be the explanation: the Lord may be advancing the cause of Christian Unity among us. Perhaps He is preparing the people to think more hopefully of the coming of the time when we shall be more closely joined together than we are now.

Our new Bishop must advance the cause of Christian Unity, and do what in him lies to bring together, as the Lord will, the divided members of the Christian family.

He can be the Bishop of Massachusetts first of all, in regarding with loving interest all of Christ's children who live here, and then as encouraging in his diocese that sincerity and devotion which may help reproduce some of the scenes witnessed in Jerusalem after Pentecost, when the continued steadfastness of the apostles' doctrine and fellowship and in breaking of bread and in prayers."

High School Notes.

Last Friday evening the "N. K. C." a '93 club, held a dance in Tremont Hall, Newtonville. The affair was very successful. H. Stewart Bosson officiated as floor manager and was assisted by H. F. Page, E. F. Hollis, A. W. Redpath and H. M. Stone. The music was furnished by Ellis W. Redpath, Mrs. Thea Nickerson and Mrs. Chas. J. Brown. The hall was very tastefully decorated with blue bunting, the class color, and the dance order covers were also blue. Many pretty ball costumes were worn by the young ladies. Cole's orchestra provided music. During the intermission a charity collection was served. About twenty couples were present.

A meeting of the class of '92 was held Monday at recess. The report of the class assessment committee was received and accepted. Mr. Williams was elected treasurer to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Bryant leaving school. A committee was appointed to make arrangements for the ballad prizes and the senior class collection.

A meeting of the Athletic Association was held Tuesday at recess. Arrangements were made for the base ball season by appointing a committee, consisting of Tarbell, '91, Stone, '92, Page, '93, Bennett, '94, to get up a school team. It was voted to take a sum of money from the treasury and buy cups for the four winners of first prizes at the last year's spring meet. The treasurer, Mr. Allen, submitted to a brief report on the condition of the association. The meeting then adjourned.

The interscholastic Tennis meet which will be held on the Harvard College courts two weeks from Saturday is receiving good encouragement. Many schools about Boston have sent contestants and any in this school who intend to enter should send in their entry fees as soon as possible to W. D. Orcutt, 32 Matthews Hall, Cambridge.

The regular meeting of the Lyceum will be held a week from tomorrow (Saturday) evening, F. B. Coffin, '91, will officiate as speaker, and he has appointed the following committees: Ways and Means, J. C. Walworth, '91, E. H. Huxley, '91, A. F. Brewer, '93; judiciary, Holmes Whitmore, '91, Samuel Tyler, '91, M. Stone, '92, '93; appropriations, H. A. Stone, '92, D. C. Greene, Jr., '91, G. K. Burgess, '92.

The committee organized to make base ball arrangements have appointed Tuesday and Friday for practice days; the former will be at Walworth's field, Newton Centre, the latter at Magnolia, Newtonville. Messrs. Stone, '92, Kimball, '94, and Whitmore, '91, will pick out the nine.

How fresh the memory lingers
Untouched 'till be fore—
By time's enacting fingers.
The footprint on the stair—
The chunk of soap left standing

The other night a woman desired her guests to hear a piece of music she had composed to turn one of John Boyle O'Reilly's poems into a ballad, says the New York Sun. The poem was "Jaqueminot." As she could not sing well, and as her husband did not care to sing, he read the verses while his wife played upon the piano. The reading was measured out to suit the music, the words being broken up into separate syllables when necessary. The effect was beautiful. Again and again the guests begged to have the performance repeated.

Cancer Can be Cured, and by Dr. James M. Solomon, Jr., 201 N. 3rd St., Boston, Mass.

Boston, Aug. 26, 1890. Dr. Solomon has cured a cancer on my lip of seventeen years' standing. It was cut out twice, or what they call enucleation, at intervals of six years, after being cut out each time I knew by the feeling it was still there, and it would be now if I had not been so fortunate as to have Dr. Solomon treat it, he did it without any cutting. I would urge those afflicted with cancer not delay, but to go at once and be cured permanently as I have done. My dear Doctor I thank from the bottom of my heart.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind.

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—look three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." —Dr. D. D. Slade of Chestnut Hill read a paper on "A Boston Merchant of 1791" before the Bostonian society on Tuesday. The merchant was Daniel Rogers, who was born in Exeter, N. H., in 1751, of an old New England family, which numbered many eminent divines and a president of Harvard among them. He first started in business in Haverhill, but came to Boston after the evacuation of the British, and entered upon business there. He first lived on School street but after his second marriage built a stately mansion on Beacon street, next to the present State House, and died in 1825. He was buried in the King's Chapel burying ground.

—Mr. Stephen A. Emery of this village, the well known teacher of piano and harmony at the New England Conservatory of Music, died at the Massachusetts General Hospital Wednesday, after a long illness. He joined the Conservatory staff at the opening of the institution in 1867. He had also been Professor of Harmony, Theory and Composition in the Boston University College of Music, and had written many songs and piano pieces. His "Elements of Harmony" have been in many places. Mr. Emery was born in Paris, Me., Oct. 4, 1841, studied at Colby for a year, and in 1862 completed his musical education abroad. On his return he taught for a time in Portland.

—It is evident from the amount of work that is being put into the ball arrangements for the coming season, that we are to have a good taste of the real game. The ball has been scheduled for most every Saturday for the season, and more than half will be played on the home grounds, Walworth's field. The way to help on the cause is for the club to take in the mother of the interest and to feel that the club is representing him. The expenses for the season will be quite large, and while some have made generous donations to the club more is needed, and it is hoped liberal contributions may be received so as to ensure the club doing its best work. Amounts can be handed to S. A. Shannon, manager, or sent to him by mail at Newton Centre, and same will be acknowledged.

—Mrs. Dr. Bates has received a very pressing invitation to locate in Denver, Col., and the invitation comes in a very flattering form, with promises of a very large practice among leading citizens. The offer came about through Dr. Bates' success in curing the son of a prominent Denver citizen of heart trouble, the disease having been pronounced incurable by specialists of Chicago and New York, and but little hope was felt when the mother of the boy came east some months ago and placed him under the care of Dr. Bates. The boy is now perfectly well and his parents are so grateful that they have canceled their friends the offer and the mother of the boy has been very successful in her specialty, diseases of the heart and kidneys. Since coming to Newton, Mrs. Bates has made many warm friends, and has always been ready to engage in any movement for the public welfare. She was the founder and first president of the Newton Associated Charities, and her executive ability made the society a success from the start. She has given new proofs of woman's ability to succeed. It is certainly to be hoped that she will conclude to remain in Newton.

—The regular meeting of N. C. E. U. was held Monday evening, April 13, at the Congregational church. Some members of the society gathered early and were gladly received by the reception committee. The church was prettily decorated with plants and flowers by the women, and at 7.45 sharp the meeting was opened by a short praise service led by Mr. F. W. Emerson. The devotional exercises began with prayer by Rev. Mr. Phillips, followed by hymns. Instead of the usual Scripture reading many Bible verses were recited. Following this came the annual election of officers: President, F. F. Davidson; vice-president, F. C. Partridge; secretary, Miss Cora N. Worth. The male quartet of the church rendered two fine pieces of music which were highly appreciated as was also the solo by Mrs. Whitney. The president introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr. W. H. West, superintendent of the Union Rescue Mission, at No. 34 Kneeland street, Boston, who spoke of the object of the mission, the gathering in of the most degraded class of men and women, and of effort made to christianize them, and assist them in finding employment. Donations of clothing and money are needed to carry on the work. An invitation was extended to visit the mission at any time. Two of the saved men from the mission were present, and gave an account of their personal experiences in the downward course, and testified to the good work being done there.

THOUGHT SHE MAY HAVE GONE WEST TO GET MARRIED.

Maria Southcomb, aged 18 years, employed as a spinner at the Nonantum Worsted Mills, has been missing for the past two weeks. She left the mill at dinner time Wednesday, April 8, and since then nothing has been heard of her. She was attired in her working clothes, and it is supposed, had very little money. A cousin of the missing girl says that she advertised for a husband in a matrimonial paper and received several letters, one of which she answered, enclosing her photograph.

The girl's aunt entertains fears of foul play, but there is apparently no reasonable ground for the supposition.
It has been ascertained that the girl received a letter containing a matrimonial offer, the writer offering to send her money to pay her expenses to his home in the West. She is, perhaps, now a bride in a western home; but her aunt feels certain that she is not, for she says Maria would have surely worn her best dress if she comtemplated a matrimonial journey.

To Atchison Stockholders.

Appropos of the offer made by the Atchison company to the "Prisco" first preferred stockholders, the following, issued by the Prisco company in 1885, when under an entirely different management, is worthy of consideration at this time:

Inquiry has been made regarding the force and extent of the preference for dividends pertaining to the $450,000 of the first preferred stock of this company, and especially whether it has such preference over payment of interest on the company's general mortgage bonds. The answer is that no dividends are payable on the first preferred stock until after the interest is paid on general mortgage bonds, and on all outstanding bonds issued by or for which, the company or its property is liable. The terms of the preference of the first preferred stock are stated in the certificates
as follows:

"This is first preferred stock and is entitled to a dividend to 7 per cent per annum derived by the company from net revenues from all sources each year (remaining after the payment of interest upon all liabilities) in preference to any dividend upon any other class of stock issued by the company, and is entitled to share pro rata equally with any other class of stock in any excess of annual dividends that may be made by the company upon any class of stock greater than 7 per cent, and by resolution of the company has priority of lien on net revenues for such dividend over any mortgage bond that may be issued by the company subsequent to the creation of this stock."

It will be seen that the first preferred stock is entitled to dividends only out of "net revenues derived by the company from net revenues after the payment of interest on all liabilities." The last clause of the certificate, referring to "priority of lien on net revenues for such dividend over any mortgage bonds," etc., applies only to bonds generally known as income mortgage bonds having a special lien on the net revenue of the company.
The object and force of the clause is to share pro rata the company from pledging or otherwise disposing of its income or net revenues in derogation of the rights of the first preferred stockholders to dividends.

The foregoing is in accordance with advice and opinion of counsel given at the time the general mortgage bonds were issued. All bonds issued by the company subsequent to the creation of first preferred stock have been issued for the acquisition or construction of new or additional property, and are secured by mortgages which are first in lien thereon. As is known, the company's net revenues have been more than sufficient for payment of regular annual dividends, at the rate of 7 per cent per annum on its first preferred stock for a long time past. Its revenues have been largely augmented by the acquisition or control of new and additional roads.

T. W. LILLIE, Treasurer.

NEWTON TARIFF REFORM CLUB. The Tariff is a Tax.

Every person interested in the subject of the Tariff, is cordially invited to take part in the discussions carried on in this column. Respectful consideration will be given to inquiries, criticisms, and communications of every kind, whether coming from Tariff Reformers, Free Traders or High Protectionists. Address Secretary of the Tariff Reform Club, Newton Centre, Mass.

Taxed Potatoes.

The McKinley bill increased the tariff on potatoes from 15 to 25 cents a bushel. Who does it help? Our ordinary crop is from 170,000,000 to 200,000,000 bushels. In ordinary years, when our crop does not fail we export about half a million bushels, and import from half a million to two millions. The potatoes imported come from Bermuda, before ours are ripe, and from New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, because they are better and keep better than ours. In years of failure we have imported potatoes from Scotland, and the whole importation has run up to 8,000,000 bushels, or 4 per cent of our consumption.

Since 1880 there have been two crop failures in the United States. In 1881 we produced only 109,000,000 bushels, or over 75,000,000 short of an average crop. Before the new crop of 1882 could be harvested, we were obliged to import to supply our needs, and keep our laboring and city population from starving, while the farmers themselves bought large quantities. Our imports in that year amounted to nearly 9,000,000 bushels, and many farmers found themselves obliged to buy imported potatoes for seeds.

The crop of 1887 was also a failure and less than half a crop was produced in the leading potato States. We were again forced to import to the extent of 8,000,000 bushels in this crop year. On the side of these two years of crop failure we have imported less than 2,000,000 bushels per year, or about 1 per cent of our total consumption. Of our imports Nova Scotia supplies nearly all, except during years of crop failure here, when we have imported from other countries, especially Scotland. Early in the crop year, before our own potatoes are grown, we get a few potatoes from the Bermudas. These are soon displaced in the markets by receipts from the Southern States. Late in the winter and during the spring and early summer the bulk of our importations come in. And it is to supply the markets in the spring and summer, when our own crop is already eaten or rotten, that we import the strong, long-keeping, hardy potatoes grown in Nova Scotia. In the markets they command the highest prices, varying from 50 to 75 cents per barrel more than our own. And the reason for this is not difficult to see. The potato grown in Nova Scotia, which has a colder climate than ours, is hardier, and better for storing for spring and summer consumption.

To sum up, we never import any potatoes in any quantity sufficient to affect the prices of our domestic crop, or at a time when our farmers have any to sell. The total average imports are only one per cent of our domestic product, and are mainly of Bermuda potatoes, which come before ours are ripe, and of Nova Scotia potatoes, which are salable after ours are no longer so. The only years when any considerable quantities were imported were those when our potato crop failed; when most of our farmers had none to sell at any price, and when, as it was, the working people of our cities suffered greatly from the scarcity of potatoes, while the farmers themselves had to buy imported potatoes to get good seed. The only possible effect of a tariff on potatoes, therefore, is to tax those who can least afford it, at just the times when the farmer can not be helped thereby, and in years when short crops and scarcity of food ruin farmers and pinch workmen, to make the former pay more for seed and add to the hardship of the latter. More than this: so far as concerns Nova Scotia, her potatoes are mainly brought by ships which return loaded with breadstuffs and beef and pork products. These are comparatively bulky articles, and unless the Nova Scotians can get freight both ways by bringing potatoes, they will take less of them from us and more from interior Canada.

The South American nations have shown a quick apprehension of the reciprocity catch in the McKinley tariff, and have increased their duties since October 6, so that they can have something to concede in reciprocity negotiation with us. Much of what Brazil conceded in the Blaine-Mendocino agreement was put on to the Brazil tariff the month after we enacted the McKinley law. And now comes the announcement that the Congress of Uruguay has imposed export duties on wool, hides and guano. This gives Uruguay something to concede. We have put all the South American countries into the position of a man who knows he has got to give his customer a heavy discount and so marks up all his goods. In the meanwhile the Boston Advertiser has satisfied itself that the President will not impose a duty on Argentine hides even if the Argentine Republic makes no concessions to us. The Boston Advertiser's readers deal in leather and boots and shoes, and they are already dropping away from the Republican party fast enough.

Perilous Cheapness.

It will be remembered that President Harrison, in one of his speeches in 1888, announced his great discovery that "a cheap coat makes a cheap man." Mr. Lodge and others adopted the phrase, and the President has recently repeated it, showing that he still thinks well of it. Here is a pleasant parody on his line of reasoning, from the N. Y. Evening Post:

We ourselves are among the number of those unreflecting political economists who think that sugar, like other things, may be too cheap. Cheap sugar seems to us necessarily to involve a cheaper man or woman outside the sugar, and is, therefore, to be deprecated. We have never liked the word cheap. Cheap and nasty go together. The whole system of cheap things is a badge of poverty, for cheap merchandise makes cheap men, and cheap men make a cheap country, and that is not the kind our fathers built. The cry for cheap sugar is un-American. There is such a thing as too cheap. It is the fetish of the Englishman. Let us have done with it. Besides, what is the use of offering a man cheap sugar if he has got no money in his pocket to buy it with? What is the use of offering the best candy at five cents a pound to a boy who has not got two cents in the world? None that we know of. We might as well offer him a steamboat for a cent. So that this McKinley cheap sugar is only a mockery of the penitence.

NEWTON TRANSCRIPT HAS BEEN CONSOLIDATED WITH THE GRAPHIC

THE LABOR MEETING.

With the ostensible object of the mass labor meeting at City Hall, Monday evening, that of forming an organization to better protect the interests of labor, but few will find fault. Employers organize, the manufacturers organize and form trusts, and labor has to organize in self defence. Capital and labor may not be antagonistic but capital is always organized, and is never slow in demanding what it wants.

Most people will sympathize also with the workmen in their protests against the free importation of foreign cheap labor, in which we have had practical free trade for so many years. The evil effects of this is especially seen in the highly protected industries of Pennsylvania, where wages have been so reduced.
American labor has been driven out, and the mine and mill owners have imported the lowest class of the population of foreign countries, because they will work at a low price. Such practices ought not to be allowed and vigorous protests are being made all over the country against this unrestricted immigration of undesirable additions to our population.

With this part of Mayor Kimball's speech we heartily sympathize, and also with the statement that our own people should have the preference when there is work to be done. But let there be fair treatment all round, and not give this man a fat job because he can control a few votes, and that man another because he has a political "pull," while the honest and industrious man who is not in politics, has none of the "plums" and has to help pay the expense of supporting the others. If there are any "fat jobs" all should have a chance at them, and it is unfair to favor say twenty men at the expense of a thousand, and then ask the thousand to pay the bills.

Here is the crushed stone business, for instance, the city tried the experiment under Mayor Kimball and Mayor Burr of doing the work itself. It was given a fair trial, and the result was that the city had to pay nearly double what other cities paid. If Mayor Kimball and Mayor Burr could not secure better results than this, there was little hope that any other mayor could, unless the system was changed. Accordingly the work was let out by contract and the result is the city will save from $10,000 to $20,000, or rather it will have this sum to hire more men to work upon the streets.

As for the kind of men Contractor Hale will employ, he is the one responsible for that, and he is the one to see, if it is desired that he should give Newton men the preference. The present City Council accepted the lowest bid, and they would have been roundly denounced by every taxpayer, if they had not done so. They were elected to look after the interests of the city, to see that for every dollar expended, the city received a fair equivalent. Every man who pays a dollar in taxes is interested in their doing this, and they are false to their oaths of office if they allow the city to pay more than a fair price for anything.

So far the City Council seems to be showing a disposition to do this. In fact we have not had a city government in years which had so little politics in it as the present one, or one which looked so closely after the interests of the city.
It is a body of business men, managing a great corporation in a business like way.
The great majority of the members from the mayor down seem to be doing their duty without a thought of re-election, satisfied to do their duty in an honest
way and let the future take care of itself.
Politicians may think such a course very foolish, but it remains to be seen if it does not prove more popular with the rank and file of the voters, than any uneasy catering for votes would prove.
The cry last fall was for a business like city government, and if the people like such a government, they will give it a solid support, and see that such a policy is encouraged. It is easy enough to have a government devoted solely to politics, if the voters desire that, but the average workingman would find his chances of getting anything a good deal less under such a government than under the present one. The leaders would then get all the favors, whereas now all are treated alike.

The suggestion that Roger Wolcott should be made the next Republican candidate for governor is such an excellent one that it will be surprising if it is not acted upon. The Democrats won because they sent their old party backs to the rear and put up such a clean and able young man as William E. Russell, and the wisdom of such a policy was shown by the results. Mr. Wolcott is a courageous, able, and independent Republican, who is not entangled with any old political quarrels and a contest between him and Russell would rouse the voters and bring new issues to the front. With such a candidate the Republicans would have all the chances in their favor, and his nomination would give evidence of a progressive spirit that would win the new voters, and it would show the other states that Massachusetts Republicans do not approve of the policy of Quay, and Dudley and Clarkson, who are too great a load for any party to carry.

Such men as Mr. Wolcott are needed to represent us both at home and at Washington if Massachusetts is to regain her old influence in national affairs. It is certainly time that we turned our attention from the past and took more account of the present and the future if we are to keep up with the procession.

School Board Proceedings.

At the regular meeting of the school board Wednesday evening, the superintendent called attention to the need of more facilities in the Primary and Grammar schools for teaching Geography at present, some of the schools have complete sets of maps while others have only a few. He suggested the purchasing of complete sets for schools where they were wanting.

The supply of text books in the Primary and Grammar grades the superintendent thought insufficient. He recommended the purchase of books so as to accommodate the classes where at present the books are not sufficiently provided.
He recommended also the appropriation of $100 for the purchase of reference books for use in the High school.
The recommendations were referred to the appropriate committee.

Mr. Hale for the committee on rules and regulations reported recommending an amendment to Sect 1, Chapter 4 of the rules which practically shut the doors of the high school to special students and provided that only those students who take the full course shall be eligible for admission to the school. The report was signed by all the members of the committee on rules and regulations.

In explanation, Mr. Lawrence of the high school committee said that in the past the admission of special students had worked badly, having had a demor-alizing influence on the pupils who attended the regular session of 5 hours.
Again, the present high school is so crowded, added Mr. Lawrence, that there is really no room for students except those who take the full course, at least 12 hours a week.

President Mead of the common council said that such a rule, in his opinion, would work hardship and would be unjust to taxpayers who wanted their children to enjoy the opportunity of special studies, in many cases where health conditions would prevent them from taking the full course.

Rev. Mr. Hornbroke said that if the number of special students could be limited to 4 or 5, the consideration suggested in Mr. Mead's remarks would have considerable weight. It is my opinion, however, added Mr. Hornbroke, that the best efficiency of the school should be considered, rather than providing privileges for special students.
The high school is very much crowded and in order to keep it up to its work, the adoption of such a rule seems necessary. We cannot allow unlimited privileges in the case of special students.
It resulted badly in the past and the high school committee has been gradually weeding out all the special students and at the present time, I believe, there are none in the school.

Rev. Mr. White said he could see no reason for special anxiety when there were no special students in the high school. The high school committee, he added, had succeeded in keeping them out and it would be better to leave the matter of special students, as at present, to the discretion of the high school committee.

Mr. Hollis said that the high school committee was constantly receiving requests from parents for permit to enter their children as special students and for that reason it was thought best to establish the rule reported by the committee on rules and regulations.

Mr. Lawrence said that from the necessities of the case and the good of the school, it seemed necessary to close the doors of the high school to students not taking the full course.

Rev. Mr. Hornbroke said that no rule, however good, could be devised but that would work hardship some where. The question is shall we consider somebody's child, unfortunately in poor health, or the greatest good of the school. A great pressure has been put upon the high school committee from frequent requests to admit special students, and it would be much better to have general rules under which the committee can work. I should like to see an addition made to the present high school building, as suggested by Councilman Mead and a greater spirit of liberality on the part of the city council in providing sufficient school accommodations.

Mr. Travis said that he signed the report of the committee on rules and regulations under misapprehension of its effect. I find myself, he added, unable to vote for the amendment as I believe that such an iron clad rule is unwise and would do great injustice and because sufficient reasons for its adoption have not been advanced. It is not enough that a pressure has been brought upon the committee and it would be better to leave the question of admitting special students, as Rev. Mr. White suggests, to the discretion of that body.

The report failed of adoption, not receiving the necessary two-thirds vote. A motion to refer the report back to the committee on rules was defeated and it was finally reconsidered and its adoption again moved by Mr. Hollis, who called for a ye and nay vote.

Mr. Hale of the committee on rules and regulations said that he had also signed the report under a misapprehension of its effect. Under the proposed rule, he said, a student might be allowed to take studies requiring only 2 hours time per day, but would be compelled to attend the high school session of 5 hours. I did not realize that fact, added Mr. Hale, when I signed the report.

On the ye and nay vote, the report again failed of adoption, 5 voting in the affirmative and 7 in the negative.

Orders were adopted authorizing the purchase of 30 copies of Jevon's Primer of Logic for use in the high school; requesting the city council to enlarge the Police school house, West Newton, by the addition of two wings containing six school rooms; appropriating $11,257.43 for expenses of the closing of the present term of the high school on Tuesday, June 23, and that of the primary and grammar grades on Thursday, June 25, requesting the superintendent to consider and report as to the feasibility of constructing a new primary school house on some suitable site between Homer and Beacon streets.

The board adjourned at 9:05 o'clock.

—The employees at the stone crusher, numbering about 12 men, struck at noon yesterday. The trouble arose from the discharge by Contractor Hale of a man named Burke. Mr. Hale thought the man sufficient to do the work of feeding the crusher and, therefore, discharged Burke. In the dining room Mrs. Hollings and Miss Margaret Worcester presided, and Mrs. Kingsbury, Mrs. Northrop and the Misses Mullen and West assisted in serving refreshments. On the same afternoon a reception by the Educational Club of West Newton, in the Congregational church parlors gave several members of the Guild a second pleasant meeting, and the bright crisp speeches of the various delegates from clubs in and about Boston added great interest to a very pleasant occasion.

—Gen. Hall Lodge No. 123 A. O. W. W. was instituted in Tremont Hall, Monday evening. Mr. Hugh Doherty, the grand recorder and Mr. Wm. B. Lilly, Grand Deputy and officers of Everett Lodge No. 7 of Williams. The reasons actuating the petition will be set forth at a hearing to be held before the aldermen next Wednesday evening.

—Mrs. Williams' stand is the oldest in Newtonville, the business having been formerly conducted by her husband, the late Augustus Williams. Mrs. Williams' side of the case will be presented by Mr. J. B. Goodrich. The subject of the petition is a much discussed topic. Those who know Mrs. Williams well believe that she obeyed the laws governing the sale of intoxicants. That the opinion is not universal is, of course, demonstrated by the petition in remonstrance. How many of the apothecaries of the city keep within the exact lines of their license is a matter of common knowledge and why the only woman druggist in the city should be singled out for an attack is a question which is being asked and which the petitioners will, undoubtedly, endeavor to answer at the hearing.

This was followed by another giving details of the work which their own branch was pursuing. Besides benevolent work in the immediate vicinity, much had been done through the P. O. mission and several letters were read in acknowledgement, showing the great interest that had been kindled by the dissemination of religious literature and other good accomplished.

—A reception was tendered to the officers of the Unitarian church of this place, the Massachusetts and Rhode Island by the West Newton Woman's Educational Club, in the Second Congregational church parlors, last Friday afternoon. Twenty-two clubs were represented, and the visitors were accorded a most hearty welcome. The guests were received from 3 until 4.30 o'clock by Mrs. E. N. L. Walton, president, and the other officers of the West Newton Club, assisted by Mrs. Lucy Stone Blackwell of Boston. After the reception an address of welcome was delivered by Mrs. Walton, and remarks followed by Mrs. Lucy Stone Blackwell, Mrs. Y. H. Robinson and others. Mr. Metcalf officiates for the first time as rector of St. James', New Bedford, on the first Sunday in May. We learn from Mr. Metcalf that "The Treasury of the Psalter" which is now being stereotyped will probably be ready for publication by Oct. 1.

During the evening a beautiful chateaufort watch was presented to Mr. Monroe's little daughter, Maud, by the members of the class, the presentation being made by Master Lenox Lindsey.

—An informal reception was held at the parlors of the Methodist church, Wednesday evening, in honor of Rev. T. W. Bishop, the new pastor appointed to this church by the last year's conference. The occasion was made doubly pleasant by the presence of Rev. W. E. Knox and wife, and Miss Bishop, a sister of Mr. Bishop. The rooms were tastefully decorated with potted plants and flowers and nearly 300 people were present during the evening. The hours of the reception being from 7.30 to 10 o'clock. The Getherella quartet consisting of young ladies from Lasell Seminary, and the Amphion male quartet sang, and Mr. George Shepard sang a solo. A light collation of ice cream, cake and coffee was served from tables fragrant with cut flowers and the usual social features were enjoyed.

—The amount of money earned by the pupil nurses, outside the Hospital during the last year, has fully proven the pecuniary value of the Training school as well as its educational advantages.

MR. CURTIS GUILD, JR., addressed the People's Institute in Boston, Wednesday evening, on the duties of a private citizen and drew a striking parallel between the conditions which caused the fall of the Greek and Roman republics and those at present existing in the United States. There was then, as now, he said, the same tendency for the best citizens to keep out of politics, which they regarded as corrupt and demoralizing, thus giving political bosses and unprincipled politicians the unbridled power to direct the revenues to their own pockets and to subserve to their own advantage the interests of the State. Moreover, the economic condition of the people was similar, on the one hand an arrogant and grasping plutocracy, and on the other a class continually increasing in their discontent.

We cannot, the speaker continued, rest on the reputation of our grandfathers and fathers, but must make our own reputation. We must create a better public opinion. Meetings should be attended and the conduct of national and State representatives carefully watched. Every man should go into politics, not specially to hold office, but to add his influence towards maintaining a clean and healthy public life.

High School Notes.

The callisthenic officers sat for their group photographs this week at Odin Fritz's.

The base ball committee, Messrs. Howard Whitmore, Stone and Kimball, have decided upon a team, with the exception of three positions, for each of which there are several promising candidates. The final decision of the judges will be made public after the practice game this afternoon at Magnolia, Newtonville. A secondary nine is also to be organized.

The treasurer of the Athletic Association will present his report at the next meeting of the organization. The cash on hand at present is somewhat over $50. Adding to this the property owned by the association, and last year's prizes given this year, the total shows that the association is worth $75. The proceeds of the meet in Armory Hall amount to over $60.

The next regular meeting of the Icyum will be held tomorrow (Saturday) evening, at 7.30 in the High School building. A fine musical program has been provided. The debate, which will be the last for this school year, will be on the "Capital Punishment" bill.

The class of '93 held a short meeting this week to arrange for the battalion picnic. An assessment of about 25 cents was levied and the following committee appointed to purchase: Messrs. Page, Brewer, Hollis and Inman.

The drill hall is assuming definite proportions. One of the cellars is nearly excavated and the foundation walls nearly all dug. Much lumber has come during the past week. The horse sheds where the Army is to be situated have been moved nearer the school building.

AMATEUR INTERCLUB BOWLING.

The Newton team played a game in its series in the Amateur Interclub Bowling League with the Casino team in Chelsea last Friday evening, winning the match by 41 pins.

The game was not decided until the 10th frame in the last string. For Newton, Richards was high roller with a total of 473, and Savage second with 453 pins to his credit. Smith and Davis led for the Casinos, the former making the best total in the game. The summary:

NEWTON WINS FROM WOODLAND PARK.

The Newtons and Woodland Parks played a game in the series for the championship of the Interclub bowling league on the Casino alleys, Monday evening. Both teams made a determined fight at every turn of the game, and there were many turns. At the conclusion of the first string Newton led by 96 pins, but on the next string Woodland Park was at the front with a dozen to spare. Had Woodland Park continued the steady bowling which characterized its second string through the last one it might have won, but the Newton men were determined to win, and win they did by 55 pins.

Capt. Follett was high bowler, with Tapley second, and Pearson third.

UNLUCKY GAME FOR NEWTON.

The Newton team played its last scheduled game in the series for the championship of the Amateur Interclub Bowling League with the Arlington Boat Club team on the Woodland Park Hotel alleys, Auburndale, Tuesday evening. There was a large attendance of ladies and gentlemen, intensely interested in the result, which was of especial importance to the Newton team. Had it won, it would have led the Boston Athletic Association team by two games, the latter team, however, having two games to play. Now, unless the Athletics are defeated by either Chelsea or Woodland Park, it will be sure of first place. If it loses a game, it will be tied with Newton.

In the first string of last night's game the Arlington gained a lead of 75 pins, their opponents bowling in poor form. The second string was more interesting, the Newtons coming out 13 pins ahead and cutting down the lead to 62 pins.

In the third, the Newtons made a valiant effort to win, and at the end of the fifth frame the Arlington were only 47 ahead.

In the last five frames both games put up a good game, the Newtons being only 19 behind at the close of the eighth frame. They fell off in the ninth, and the Arlington won by 37 pins.

The Newtons had hard luck, leaving families in good halls, while the Arlington succeeded in getting off a team of strikes on balls that struck far off the strip pin. The summary:

NEWTONS TIED FOR FIRST PLACE.

The Boston Athletic Association team secured a firmer grip, while the Arlington team, in the championship of the amateur interclub bowling by defeating the Review club team of Chelsea on the Woodland Park Hotel alleys, Auburndale, Wednesday evening.

On the first string the Athletics obtained a lead of 152 pins, which was increased to 253 in the second, and 303 in the third.

The victory ties the Athletics in number of games won with the Newton team, with one game yet to play with the Woodland Parks. If the Athletics take the game from the Woodland Parks, they will win the championship.

Lodge was high roller, with a total of 535. He also made the best 10-frame score that has been made this season, knocking down 225 pins. G. Davis made the best total score for the Chelsea, that of 443 pins. Wednesday night's game finished the series on the Woodland Park alleys.

—A herd of cattle while being driven through this village Wednesday, lost one of the number from exhaustion. Two died before reaching this village, one at West Newton and another at Newtonville. They were being driven to Brush Hill Farm in the vicinity of Natick.

—A horse attached to a buggy created a lively scene about the depot last Saturday evening. The owner was but a short distance from the horse when he made a break, evidently for home, but stopped after partly crossing a fence. The carriage was rendered useless, but the horse did not appear to be hurt. The team belonged at West Newton.

—One of the water mains used to convey water from the Cochituate lake burst last Sunday morning, a short distance from the Charles River arch bridge, at a point where a street was recently built across the line. Some children first noticed the break and Wm. Cunningham, who happened to be on a short distance away, sent word to Cunningham and Chestnut Hill and opened the pipes leading into the river, which greatly stopped the force of water at the break. The damage was slight on account of the quickness of the discovery, and actions of three men, Mr. Cunningham, Wm. Ware and Edward Murphy. A large portion of the street over the break was washed away. A coincidence is that the accident happened about 75 yards from one of 1859, which caused a loss of over $20,000, and took two weeks to repair. It is stated the cause of the break is on account of the street passing over at this point, but many think this is the place most liable to break of any on the line, from the fact that it is at the bottom of a steep hill, and great pressure is brought to bear on the lower pipes in forcing it up.

—A concert of unusual excellence will take place in St. John's Parish Hall on next Sunday evening April 26th. The concert will not begin until 8 o'clock in order to accommodate the great numbers who have purchased tickets from out of town. On Sunday evening a train leaves Newton at 7:20, Newtonville at 7:29, West Newton at 7:32, Auburndale at 7:35, Riverside at 7:40 and arrives at Newton Centre at 7:45 p. m. in ample time for the concert. A train returns for the above places from Eliot station, only a short walk from St. John's church, at 1:15 p. m. Trains leave Newton Centre at 7:40 p. m., and Newton Highlands at 7:42 p. m., reaching Waban, only a short distance from St. John's church, at 7:48. People from Newton Centre and Newton Highlands can return from the Waban station at 10:50 p. m. This concert is entirely under the control of Mr. Edward H. Frye, who has gathered an array of talent very seldom heard in one entertainment. Among other artists who will appear are the following: "The celebrated Commonwealth Glee Singers" composed of Elijah M. Spears, 1st Tenor; Phillip Greeley, 2nd Tenor; W. H. Hunter, 1st Bass; J. B. Scammon, 2nd Bass. This celebrated quartet will sing among other things, the famous hymn of His Eminence the late Cardinal Newman, "Lead Kindly Light." Mr. Dudley H. Prescott will also appear, who is famous as a musical mimic and humorist; Mr. Edward H. Frye, whose character impersonations make him a welcome artist at any entertainment; Mr. Harry Cahill, cornetist; Mr. Fred E. Hansell, America's champion whistling soloist. Mr. Hansell has a marvellous way of imitating the human voice, that he can distinctly whistle the air and alto of a piece at one and the same time. More marvellous still, Mr. Hansell trills the treble of a piece, while he whistles the alto, and the two voices are heard in perfect chords at one and the same time, and all in harmony. The tickets for this remarkable entertainment are 50 cents, and a few reserved seats for late comers at 75 cents. St. John's parish hall is now entirely renovated and beautified. Steam heat has been put in, a beautiful stage, with full complement of scenery added. Mr. Chas. Schumacher of Boston has done a beautiful piece of work in frescoing, and the new gas fixtures, and extra embellishments make it a most beautiful hall. It will now seat comfortably nearly 700 people.

Associated Charities.

A meeting of the Newton Associated Charities was held Thursday afternoon, April 16. Dr. D. E. Baker of Newtonville made a careful report on the ways and means of obtaining employment for the poor of our city. The association wants to make itself a medium for this work. The necessity of having a paid agent for the association was considered and the matter left in the hands of a committee to report at the next meeting.

The Velvet Lawn.

There is nothing that makes a city more attractive than nicely kept lawns, and Newton is noted for the beauty of its lawns, and one reason for this the owners know what fertilizers to use. We have just received a handsomely printed little pamphlet from the Bradley Fertilizer Company, entitled "The Velvet Lawn," which ought to be in the hands of everyone who has a lawn to care for. It tells clearly and tells just what you need to take to put the lawn in first-class condition. Our Village Improvement Societies would do well to distribute these books throughout the city. If they do not, you can get one free at Campbell's or Knapp's, or they will send you one if you will drop them a postal. You can also send direct to the Bradley Fertilizer Co., 27 Kilby St., Boston. Let it be understood that this pamphlet is issued principally for advertising purposes, but you will find it a valuable help in renovating your lawn. At any rate it will cost you but a penny to secure it. Send for it.

The Central Dry Goods store of Waltham invite the attention of Newton people to their very attractive stock, at right prices.

Household Economy.

"One even teaspoonful of Cleveland's Baking Powder will accomplish as much or more than a heaping teaspoonful of any other powder."

SANTA FE R. R. CO.

NO. 95 MILK STREET.

P. O. Box 346, BOSTON, April 7, 1891.

TO THE

FIRST PREFERRED STOCKHOLDERS,

St. Louis & San Francisco Railway Company.

The Circular No. 64, issued by the Atchison Company to its stockholders, and dated May 23, 1890 explained the manner in which the COMMON and PREFERRED STOCKS of the ST. LOUIS & SAN FRANCISCO RAILWAY COMPANY were exchanged for stock of the Atchison Company. It further stated that the FIRST PREFERRED STOCK of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railway Company, being that held by yourselves, and amounting to 45,000 shares, of the par value of $4,000,000.00, was not disturbed, and so it has remained until now, when the Atchison Company is enabled to judge, from practical experience and knowledge, upon what terms to have an equitable proposal to the holders for an interchange of securities.

The many complications arising from the control of the Atlantic & Pacific Railroad Company being exercised jointly by the Atchison and the St. Louis & San Francisco Companies, and the hopelessness of working, under divided ownership, three railways really comprised in one system of which the Atlantic & Pacific Railroad was an integral portion, constituted the prime factors in determining the Atchison Company to acquire the stocks of the St. Louis & San Francisco Company at the time it did so, and thus to remove all conflicting internal interests.

The Management of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railway Company has decided to issue a New Consolidated four per cent Gold Bond, covering all of its properties, equipment, lands, and realties, in amount $50,000,000.00, subject only to prior liens of present outstanding mortgages, secured Bonds, and will be gradually retired by the operation of their respective sinking funds and maturities, and be replaced by the new Bonds.

The present total outstanding Direct Mortgage Bonds of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railway Company on its own and leased lines is $36,077,200. This will leave $13,922,800.00 New Consolidated four per cent Gold Bonds available for the following purposes:—

1. To pay off and interest by the St. Louis & San Francisco Railway Company's Second Mortgage six per cent Bonds, guaranteed both by the St. Louis & San Francisco Company and the Atchison Company. To provide for complete and proper facilities and machinery with which to conduct operations in the nature of Round Houses, Machine Shops, Station and other buildings, improved Bridges, and Equipment to complete the road and to place the Company and its properties in sound financial and physical condition.

The Atchison Company will offer $4,500,000.00 of the New Bonds of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railway Company, when issued, to the holders of St. Louis & San Francisco Railway Company's First Preferred Stock on a basis of exchange of par for par, each share of stock being entitled to $100 in the New Bonds. These bonds draw interest from October 1, 1890, at four per cent. The Atchison Company also will extend this four per cent interest back to January 1, 1890, so that First Preferred Stockholders, upon surrender of their certificates of stock, will receive Par in the New Bonds and interest in cash at four per cent continuously from January 1, 1890.

Holders of First Preferred Stock of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railway Company desiring to make the exchange proposed will please apply for blank forms of acceptance and for any information desired, to the Vice-President, 95 Milk St., Boston.

GEORGE C. MAGOUN, Chairman.

J. W. REINHART, Vice-President.
